The Defense Program

THE FIRST ARMY

By LT. GEN. HUGH A. DRUM
Commanding General, First Army

In the development of the enlarged Army, probably our most advanced step and the one least appreciated by the general public, is the organization of a Field Force, complete within itself, which in time, should be prepared for operations wherever an emergency may demand.

In the World War, the Field Force was the A. E. F., and in the United States the home organization was the Zone of the Interior, responsible for the supply of men and material to maintain the Field Force.

After the World War, the Army reverted to the old peacetime territorial organization and the Field Force was absorbed into the Zone of the Interior set-up. The War Department established the territorial Corps Areas, and Combat Organizations consisted of only a few Divisions. From a training viewpoint, we were limited to small units and we lacked the organization of higher commands and staffs. The Maneuvers of 1939 and 1940 demonstrated the weakness of such territorial organization. The current increase in the size of the Army has permitted a more realistic approach to find a solution to the difficulties inherent in a post-war organization on a territorial basis.

The organization of the Field Force of our Army is superimposed on the territorial Corps Area organization and is designed to operate irrespective of Corps Area boundaries. Under the GHQ of the Army, four Field Armies, an Air Force and an Armored Force exist as parts of the new tactical organization. Within the tactical set-up the Regular Army, the National Guard, and the Organized Reserves, as well as Trainees, are amalgamated as a homogeneous team.

The old Corps Area territorial set-up retains the functions of operating depots, service schools, civil affairs, initial stages of mobilization, and other activities directly under the War Department.

The First Army Headquarters is located at Governors Island, New York, and comprises the I, II, and VI Army Corps, including eight divisions, numerous Corps and Army troops, an Air Defense Command and Harbor Defense Commands along the North Atlantic coast. The troops of the First Army are located in stations extended from Maine to Georgia. In addition, small provisional forces will garrison the advanced bases to be established in Newfoundland and Bermuda. Air Forces and Armored Forces are made available to the First Army as GHQ may desire. All these organizations within the First Army are superimposed on the existing territorial organization of the First, Second, Third and part of the Fourth Corps Areas.

The Corps Area Headquarters in Boston, New York, Baltimore and Atlanta continue their territorial functions of post maintenance, camp construction, supply, hospitalization, civil affairs, and Federal protection of government property, as in the past.

Would Revise Navy Pay

Legislation to give Reserve officers on active duty in the Navy the same pay and allowances as regulars is contemplated by Representative Melvin J. Maas, Minn., ranking Republican member of the House Naval Affairs Committee. Representative Maas said at the present time junior officers in the Reserve are paid much less than regulars although they may be doing the same type of service. He said:

"I plan to introduce a bill or an amendment to an existing bill in the House to provide that Reserve officers on active duty will receive the same pay and allowances as regulars. They now do that in the higher grades, but in the lower grades there is a great difference in the pay and allowances; a difference that runs up as high as $60 a month in the case of ensigns, for example."

"The pay of the regulars should apply to reserve officers on active duty. An ensign in the reserve ordered to active duty who would be paid $171 a month if he were a regular only gets $139 a month now for the same duties and the same length of service. And the same is true with respect to allowances. A regular gets almost twice as big allowances as a reserve officer, and this is creating a very unfair situation."

"This difference also seriously affects the retired pay. Junior officers retired on 75 per cent disability pay get a lot less than regular officers even though they all may have been retired at the same time, with the same length of service and as a result of disabilities received in the same engagement."

"If I can get this through any faster, the next time we have any form of per-

(At the request of the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL, General Watson, who accompanied President Roosevelt on his visit to Army posts this week, has prepared the following statement concerning the trip.)

BY MAJ. GEN. E. M. WATSON, USA
Military Aide to the President

ENROUTE to Washington from his brief southern vacation the President visited Ft. Jackson, S. C., and Ft. Bragg, N. C., to observe the activities of the Army units at these rapidly expanding stations.

Arriving at Ft. Jackson at 8:30 A.M., Monday, 31 March, the Commander-in-Chief was received with a gun salute and greeted by the Post Commander, Maj. Gen. William E. Shedd, but in accordance with his instructions no review was held and no change was made in the training schedule.

After an inspection of the training in progress in General Shedd's 8th Division and the 30th Division under the command of Maj. Gen. Russell, the President visited the training areas of the 102nd Cavalry and the 128th Field Artillery regiments.

The Presidential party reached Ft. Bragg at 4:30 P.M. where the C. in C. was received by Maj. Gen. Jacob L. Devers, commanding the post and the 9th Division. The inspection covered the training activities of the 9th Division and those of the 13th Field Artillery Brigade, the 34th Coast Artillery Brigade (A.A.), the 112th and 178th Field Artillery Regiment, the 134th Medical Regiment, and the 112th Observation Squadron. The inspection was concluded by a visit to the Field Artillery Replacement Center, commanded by Col. E. P. Parker.

Seek Unlimited Use of Retired Army Personnel

Legislation authorizing the ordering to active duty of all retired Army personnel, with or without their consent, for such duty as may be deemed advisable during a national emergency or in time of war was asked this week by the War Department.

The purpose of the bill, Secretary of War Stimson wrote the Speaker of the House of Representatives, "Is to remove all statutory restrictions now limiting the type of duty to which retired personnel may be assigned; to authorize the employment of such personnel on active duty in the discretion of the President with or without their consent in time of war or national emergency and with their consent during other times, and to authorize full pay and allowances for all such persons while on active duty."

Under the present law retired Army personnel may be ordered into active military service for a period of twelve consecutive months, with or without their consent, until 30 June 1942. Aside from this law which was passed last year the only authority to call retired personnel in time of peace is in the case of retired officers who may, with their consent, be employed on specified types of active duty, and retired warrant officers and enlisted men who may be detailed at educational institutions.

Text of Letter

Secretary Stimson's letter requesting the legislation follows:

"There is inclosed the draft of a bill to remove certain restrictions upon the employment of retired personnel of the Regular Army on active duty, which the War Department presents for the consideration of the Congress with a view to its enactment into law.

"Public Resolution No. 96, 76th Congress, provides that during the period ending 30 June 1942, the President may order into the active military service, for a period of twelve consecutive months each, retired personnel of the Regular Army, with or without their consent. Other existing laws authorize, in time of peace, the employment of retired officers with their consent on specified types of active duty such as recruiting, National Guard assignments, military attaches and staff duty not involving service with troops. In time of war retired officers may be employed on active duty in the discretion of the President. In time of peace, except for the twelve-month period authorized by Public No. 96, 76th Congress, authority for the employment of retired warrant officers and enlisted men is limited to duty at educational institutions maintaining Reserve Officers' Training Corps units or courses of instruction prescribed by the Secretary of War and subject to the consent of the person detailed. No statutory authority exists for calling retired warrant officers or enlisted men to active duty in time of war."

"Section 17 of the Pay Readjustment Act of 10 June 1922 (42 Stat. 632), provides, in part, that 'Retired officers of the Army, Navy, Marine Corps, Coast Guard, and Coast and Geodetic Survey below the

Press Ponders Growing Strength of R. A. F.; Consider Invasion

The growing power of the Royal Air Force and the effect of the raids on Nazi Germany not to mention actual talk of an invasion of continental Europe by the British, is rapidly coming in for more and more space in American news comments.

The Cleveland Plain Dealer sounds off the key-note of the growing power of the RAF with the declaration that "released by the assurance of American aid from the bonds of strategy described as penitently defensive, the British Royal Air Force has begun large scale bombing attacks against factories, railroad terminals, airports, docks, and warehouses in Germany and the occupied countries." The Plain Dealer said that "from the start of the war the R.A.F. pilots have been outnumbered and have been compelled to fly greater distances than the Germans to retaliate for the bombing of British cities" but the Plain Dealer uttered the hope that with American help, the time soon will come when the British flyers will be able to carry out Churchill's promise that every bomb dropped on English soil will be returned four-fold to Germany. Much significance was attached to the fact that the R.A.F. if gradually assuming control over enemy territory insofar as daytime bombings are concerned, and declared that "when this control is finally and completely obtained, it will eliminate virtually all daytime military activity in the areas so patrolled."

The Record, of Troy, N. Y., views the British, since the passage of the Lend-Lease Bill as moving over from the defensive to accept the offensive of the raging aerial warfare and bombings. "Britain will not have planes enough, for some time, to wrest air supremacy from the Nazis, but she is demonstrating her growing strength and striking some smashing blows," the Record declared. The Charleston, S. C. Post, in comment on the intensified raids by both the Nazis and the British, declared that on neither side of the English Channel and the North Sea can immunity from night bombings be promised, except in areas on the continent that are beyond the range of enemy aircraft. "Attacks that are in store therefore will be more numerous and destructive than the ones that have gone before. Both combatants have more and better bombers, larger and fresher stocks of explosives while air raid counter measures are not one whit improved from the standpoint of ground defense or night pursuit," the Post declared. "If air bombing develops and continues in the manner promised, the outcome of the war may depend on the reactions of the civilian populations, which may find expression in general revulsion at the entire inhumane and barbarous proceeding," the Post concluded.

Use of Retired Army Personnel

grade of brigadier general or commodore and retired warrant officers and enlisted men of those services, shall, when on active duty, receive full pay and allowances * * *

Full Pay and Allowances

"The purpose of the proposed legislation is to remove all statutory restrictions now limiting the type of duty to which retired personnel may be assigned, to authorize the employment of such personnel on active duty in the discretion of the President with or without their consent in time of war or national emergency and with their consent during other times, and to authorize full pay and allowances for all such persons while on active duty.

"Retired personnel are a part of the Regular Army, in the interest of economy and military efficiency their services should be available, regardless of their consent, during any part or all of a period of emergency and utilized to the extent required by the situation and in accordance with their ability to perform active service of value to the nation. The restrictions on the type of duty to which retired personnel may be assigned in time of peace, other than for a period of twelve months each prior to 30 June 1942, serve no useful purpose and prevent in some cases obtaining a maximum value from an officer's previous training and experience.

"The employment of retired personnel on active duty, in lieu of reserve personnel in corresponding grades, results in a considerable saving to the government, but the amount cannot be determined prior to the actual selection of individuals for such active duty. For the 289 retired officers now on active duty the saving amounts to approximately $900,000 per year.

"The Bureau of the Budget advises that there is no objection to the submission of this proposed legislation for the consideration of the Congress."

Following is the text of the bill, S 1202, which was introduced by Senator Morris Sheppard, Texas, chairman of the Senate Committee on Military Affairs:

"Be it enacted, etc., That the third paragraph of section 127a, National Defense Act, as amended by section 50 of the Act of 4 June 1920 (41 Stat. 785), be, and the same is hereby, amended to read as follows:

"In time of war or in time of any national emergency declared by the Congress or by the President, retired officers, warrant officers, nurses, and enlisted men of the Regular Army, with or without their consent, and during other times with their consent, may be employed on active duty in the discretion of the President and may be assigned to such stations, organizations, and duties as the Secretary of War may direct, without regard to heretofore existing statutory restrictions upon the employment of such personnel on active duty. Hereafter any retired officers, warrant officer, nurse, or enlisted man of the Army, Navy, Marine Corps, Coast Guard, and Coast and Geodetic Survey, while employed on active duty, shall receive the full pay and allowances of the grade in which he or she is so employed: Provided, that no right to increased pay or allowances shall accrue to officers advanced in rank under the provisions of the Acts of 21 June 1930 (40 Stat. 793; U.S.C., title 34, sec. 399c), 18 January 1936 (40 Stat. 1092; U.S.C., Supp. V, title 34, sec. 399f), and 23 June 1938 (52 Stat. 949; U.S.C., Supp. V, title 34, sec. 404 (1)), as a result of such advancement."

Two Admirals Shifted

A number of future changes of duty, two of which involve flag officers, were announced this week by the Navy Department.

Rear Adm. John W. Greenslade, member of the Navy Department General Board, and senior officer of the board which has surveyed Navy shore facility needs, will become commandant of the 12th Naval District, San Francisco, Calif., succeeding Rear Adm. Arthur J. Hepburn, who was senior member of the first board which reported upon shore facility needs.

Admiral Hepburn will report to the Secretary of the Navy at the Navy Department.

Another order will send Capt. Jules James from Naval Operations to command of the Naval Operating Base, Bermuda.

Other orders soon to be announced are:

Comdr. Horace D. Clarke, detached command of Destroyer Division Sixteen to U. S.

The Journal Salutes

This week the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL salutes:

Brig. Gen. Omar N. Bradley, who has taken over his new duties as Commandant of the Infantry School, Ft. Benning, Ga.

Capt. Robert C. Giffen, USN, who has been assigned to command Cruiser Division 7.

Lt. Col. Omar T. Pfeiffer, USMC, who has been ordered to duty on the staff of the Commander-in-Chief, U. S. Fleet.

The Leader of Eau Claire, Wis., looks upon those who look for an invasion finish of the European war with British military forces as conquerors or rather liberators of nations now held in thrall as having the required initiative as well as a good military imagination. The Leader declares that "disclosure is made that plans have already been laid for an invasion with laden forces of both Germany and Italy and that the enterprise has advanced as far as assembling, training and equipment." This plan, the Leader declares, is expected to be put in execution as soon as the air force shall have attained a certain degree of superiority, which is not considered very far from the present in point of time. The Greenville, S. C. News, declares that talk of invasion coming from British official sources "may be designed chiefly to give Hitler and the German people something more to worry about—a part, that is to say, of the war of 'nerves' and of propaganda. But it apparently indicates the ultimate purpose and determination of the British to win a clear-cut victory and 'nail it down' by the use of land forces when conditions may be deemed right for such an effort. The News concluded with the assertion, "But obvious all that is in the far future. Right now Britain is facing her most crucial fight of the war and she must survive this attempt of Hitler to destroy her this spring before she can do anything about possible conquests on the continent." The Allentown, Pa. Call depicts the invasion talk of the British in the light of a "change in British spirit from that of a people expecting invasion and the possibility of conquest to that of a people ready to assume the offensive." The Call cited British invasions of the Norwegian islands in which the British "cleaned out the place as to Germans, destroyed industries valuable to her war industry and then left for home with about three hundred Norwegians who were eager to get somewhere where they could take up arms against their oppressors. Then they made further announcement that just as they invaded Norway in this surprise attack with armored and armed barges, so they expect with many such craft to invade other parts of German-conquered country."

The Louisville, Ky. Times declared that "the war will not be won by Britain unless it is won on the Continent. By what forces, altogether, it will be won on the Continent, if the British advance their lines into Germany, only a prophet could say." The Times quoted William Linton Andrews, editor of the Yorkshire Post and Leeds Mercury, as saying that "sooner or later when we clash with the German Army on the Continent we shall be able to arouse the victim peoples to fight alongside us."

Pay of Grade in Army

Early action by Congress on proposed legislation to provide pay-for-grade for all commissioned officers in the Army will be demanded by Representative Overton Brooks, La., sponsor of H. R. 2228 which would provide that "no commissioned officer of the United States Army shall receive less basic pay than any other officer of the same rank and length of commission service."

The bill is designed to rectify the present situation whereby many officers of the Regular Army are serving in higher grades in the Army of the United States but, because of the wording of the Pay Act, are permitted to draw only the pay of their permanent (lower) grade. The bill has been submitted to the War Department for comment and it is understood that a favorable reply has been drafted and awaits only the approval of the Bureau of the Budget before being sent to Congress.

"I believe this bill will go through Congress in a hurry if it is approved by the War Department," Representative Brooks told the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL this week. "I have been urging passage of the bill but the Army is pretty well tied up with the National Defense program and it is not fair to insist on an early report knowing of the great amount of work they have to do anyway." He stated, however, that he proposed to continue his efforts to get early Congressional action on the measure.

"This bill is important to the Army," Representative Brooks added. "If an officer is promoted from captain to major, for example, his responsibilities are increased and he should be compensated accordingly. While I cannot speak for the members of the Military Affairs Committee, I can say that I am sure the members of the committee appreciate the fact that an Army officer has certain definite financial responsibilities which increase with his raise in grade even if it is purely temporary and the officer is not treated fairly if he is not given additional financial compensation to help him meet the requirements of his higher position. I believe that most of the members of the committee and the other members of Congress appreciate that."

Enlisted Pilots

A study is underway in the War Department looking toward the use of enlisted personnel as pilots. In the meantime, the Navy is planning to vastly increase their percentage of enlisted pilots in accordance with recommendations made by the special board appointed last Fall by the Secretary.

In the Navy, it is likely that greater opportunities will be offered to enlisted men to take flight training and qualify as pilots. It is also probable that a program will be undertaken for the recruiting of enlisted personnel specifically for flight training. Under the latter category the service could accept men otherwise well qualified but who fall short of the educational standards set for commissioned personnel.

It was stated at the office of the Chief of the Air Corps this week that the Army has never been able to use enlisted men as pilots except for those enlisted in the status of Flying Cadets. The field from which future pilots could be recruited would be vastly increased if legislative authority were given for the employment of enlisted pilots, it was said.

Observers with RAF

A number of officers of the United States Army Air Corps have been sent to England to serve as observers with the Royal Air Force. It was learned this week. Their particular mission will be to fly with the large bombardment planes manufactured in this country and flown to England. While it was not definitely stated, some American officers may have made the trip across the ocean in the bombers.

It is understood that none of our bombers have gone into combat as yet, but that when they do go American observers will be with them to witness their operation and be better able to report their strengths and weaknesses.

Four Air Forces Created

Orders have been issued for the creation of four separate Army "Air Forces" in the continental United States.

While they will all be under the command of, and integral part of, the General Headquarters Air Force, each of the new Air Forces will be a complete entity of its own, capable either of separate and independent action or of joining with other forces of the GHQ.

The new Air Forces were created by the simple expedient of dropping the designations "Air Districts" and "Air District Commanders" and substituting therefor "Air Force" and "Air Force Commanders." Each covers a territorial area of the United States.

The headquarters and commanders are located as follows:

First Air Force—Brig. Gen. James E. Chaney, Mitchel Field, N. Y., for the northeast area.

Second Air Force—Brig. Gen. Barton K. Yount, MacDill Field, Fla., for the southeast area.

Third Air Force—Brig. Gen. John F. Curry, Spokane, Wash., for the northwest area.

Fourth Air Force—Brig. Gen. Jacob E. Fickel, March Field, Calif., for the southwest area.

Each of these Air Forces will be composed of the fields and installations in their areas and the tactical commands stationed there. Each will have a well balanced fighting force of the various types of airplanes.

The fact that there are four such Air Forces facilitates their cooperation and joint action with the four Armies, should such become necessary.

New Army Units

Activation of more than 300 new Army units, large and small, will be made possible beginning about 30 June 1941, when the Replacement Training Centers of the Army "graduate" their first class of approximately 148,000 trainees called under the Selective Service Act, the War Department announced this week.

Of the Army's twenty-one Replacement Training Centers, twenty are now operating, the one at Ft. Leonard Wood, Missouri, being still under construction. Eventually, they will have facilities to train an aggregate of more than 180,000 men. Approximately three and a half groups of that size will be turned out each year. At present, more than 100,000 men are getting their basic training in these centers. They began to enter early in March. On 30 June, slightly more than 60,000 will be able to join units.

The new units to be activated in June and July are included in the list published in the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL of 21 December 1940, others on that list either having been activated already or to be activated before Summer.

Exchange Army Day Greetings

The following letters, regarding "Army Day," 1941, have been exchanged by the Chief of Naval Operations, Admiral H. R. Stark, and the Chief of Staff of the Army, General George C. Marshall:

Dear General Marshall:

"Please accept from the officers and men of your sister service, the Navy, on the occasion of Army Day 1941, our warm personal regards, our thanks for the close cooperation we have had from the Army, and our congratulations on the splendid progress which you have made toward increased national defense during the past year.

"We have watched with admiration the rapid rate of your expansion program with its many ramifications throughout the country.

"May I add my own best wishes to you, and to your officers and men with the hope and expectation that the coming year will find the Army and the Navy in even closer contact and more ready than ever before to defend the rights of this nation.

"Sincerely yours,

"Harold R. Stark."

Dear Admiral Stark:

"Your letter extending the congratulations of the Navy on the occasion of Army Day has just been received. Will you please convey to the officers and men of the Navy our thanks for this note of support and encouragement? I would like them to know that there is nothing perfunctory in this acknowledgment. The Army is sincerely appreciative of the cooperation which your people have

Air Training Program

The War Department announced this week details of the increase planned in the rate of training of Air Corps pilots from 12,000 to 30,000 pilots a year, and of air corps mechanics from 45,000 to 100,000 a year with corresponding increases for Navigation and Bombardier training.

The increase in training facilities which will be required and the number of trainees under the present program and the contemplated 30,000 pilot program are indicated in the following tables:

Schools	12,000- pilot pro- gram	30,000- pilot pro- gram
---------	----------------------------------	----------------------------------

Pilot training:
Elementary training:
Contract civil flying schools	27	48

Replacement centers (pilots, bombardiers and navigators)	2,400	8,050

The new Air Corps expansion program, under which technicians will be trained at the rate of 100,000 a year instead of 45,000, will require the expenditure of approximately $29,000,000 for additional school facilities.

More than $24,000,000 will be spent in constructing two new technical schools, one at Biloxi, Miss., and the other at Wichita Falls, Tex. Approximately $5,000,000 will be spent for additional housing at existing technical schools.

The Biloxi and Wichita Falls Schools will enroll 800 enlisted students every 14 days for 22 weeks of instruction in aircraft mechanics. Approximately 14,500 officers, enlisted men and enlisted students will be stationed at each school. Each institution will turn out aircraft mechanics at the rate of 20,000 a year.

Navy Section Bases

A $9,000,000 program is under way in the Navy looking toward the construction of the first of 70 section bases designed for berthing the large number of district and district-defense vessels recently acquired. The bases will have facilities for docking, repairing and servicing the small defense craft assigned to them.

Sites of 27 of the bases have already been selected and are being equipped. They are:

First Naval District—Lockwood Basin (Boston) and Newport, R. I.

Third Naval District—New London, Conn., and Tompkinsville, N. Y.

Fourth Naval District—Cape May, N. J.

Fifth Naval District—Little Creek, Del.

Sixth Naval District—Charleston, S. C.

Seventh Naval District—Jacksonville, Fla.

Eighth Naval District—Burrowood, La., and Sabine Pass, Tex.

Tenth Naval District—Quantanamo Bay and San Juan.

Eleventh Naval District—San Diego and San Pedro, Calif.

Twelfth Naval District—San Francisco, Calif., Eureka, Calif., and Morro Bay, Calif.

Thirteenth Naval District—Port Angeles, Wash., Seattle, Wash., Astoria, Ore., Coos Bay, Ore., Kodiak, Alaska, Dutch Harbor, Alaska, and Sitka, Alaska.

Fourteenth Naval District—Bishop's Point, Oahu.

Fifteenth Naval District—Balboa, C. Z. and Cristobal, C. Z.

Additional sites are to be selected in naval districts in the following number:

First, 8; Third, 1; Fourth, 1; Sixth, 3; Seventh, 3; Eighth, 4; Eleventh, 1; Twelfth, 1 and Thirteenth, 21.

Little has been said of the importance of these bases, but that the Navy Department regards them highly, is evident in all quarters.

The craft assigned to the bases will lay nets and mine waters assigned to them in an effort to make hazardous any venture by belligerent vessels which might evade the Navy at sea and approach our shores. They will keep the channels open to American shipping and naval vessels and remove mines or other obstacles hazardous to our shipping.

The bases will consist of facilities to repair craft assigned to them, and will have storage facilities for fuel oil, gasoline, ammunition, and provisions, it is indicated. They will include messing facilities and recreation facilities for the crews of craft berthed at them as well as barracks.

The cost of each section will average about $250,000.

THE UNITED STATES ARMY

President's Trip

The Commander-in-Chief expressed himself as both pleased and impressed by the progress of training and by the morale and appearance of the troops. The keynote of speed was conspicuously evident, both in the combat training of units and in the development of the camp and camp facilities.

Ft. Jackson, the first of the two posts visited by the President has a strength of 32,000 men and is commanded by Maj. Gen. William E. Shedd. Troops there are as follows:

Regular Army Troops: 8th Division (Triangular) commanded by Major General Shedd, Assistant Division Commander, Brigadier General White, Artillery Commander, Brigadier General Marley.

National Guard Troops: 30th Division (Square) (North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, Georgia), commanded by Maj. Gen. Russell. Other generals, Brigadier Generals Marchant and Scott. 102d Cavalry Regiment from New Jersey; 128th Field Artillery from Missouri.

Ft. Jackson was established near Columbia, S. C., in June, 1917, as one of the 16 great cantonments established in 1917 for the concentration of National Army troops from Tennessee and North and South Carolina. It has an area of 52,000 acres. The camp was named for Maj. Gen. Andrew Jackson, United States Army, who subsequently served as President of the United States. While Ft. Jackson was used extensively during the World War, its use was discontinued soon after the war and it was not re-garrisoned until 1940, when its designation was changed from Camp Jackson to Ft. Jackson. The ultimate strength of Ft. Jackson will be 43,100.

Ft. Bragg, N. C.

Ft. Bragg has a strength of 34,000 men, as follows:

Regular Army Troops: 9th Division commanded by Maj. Gen. Jacob L. Devers, Asst. Div. Comdr., Brig. Gen. Harding, Artillery Comdr., Brig. Gen. Hoyle; 34th Coast Artillery Brigade, consisting of 67th Coast Artillery, 76th Coast Artillery (colored), 77th Coast Artillery (colored); 13th Field Artillery Brigade, commanded by Brig. Gen. John A. Crane, consisting of 17th Field Artillery, 36th Field Artillery; Field Artillery Replacement Center, commanded by Colonel E. P. Parker, and Reception Center.

National Guard: 178th Field Artillery from South Carolina, 112th Field Artillery from New Jersey, 112th Observation Squadron from Ohio, and 134th Medical Regiment from New York.

Ft. Bragg was established 21 Aug.

1918, 10 miles northwest of Fayetteville, N. C.; area—about 120,000 acres. It was named in honor of Capt. Braxton Bragg, who, while commanding Battery C, 3rd Artillery, rendered signal service at the battle of Buena Vista, Mexico. He later served as a distinguished general officer in the Confederate Army. Fort Bragg has been continually operated as a Regular Army Post subsequent to its establishment. The ultimate strength of Fort Bragg, under the present emergency program, will be 60,900.

Deduction's from Soldier's Pay

The deduction of $3.00 a year from the pay of enlisted men of the Regular Army, now being made for the U. S. Soldiers' Home Fund, will have to be continued for another two years in order to build the fund up to $5,000,000. This information was given to the House Appropriation committee by Maj. Gen. Frederick W. Coleman, governor of the Home, during the hearings on the Civil Functions Appropriation bill.

The committee was very much impressed with the efficient operation of the Home and inserted in its record the report of The Inspector General which spoke highly of its administration.

The discussion of the pay deduction proceeded as follows:

General Coleman. "About a year ago the problem was taken up with the Board of Commissioners by the Secretary of War, with the view of reducing that 25 cents to a smaller amount to be collected. Due to the increase in the Army."

Mr. Snyder. "The 25-cent monthly contribution is made only by regular enlisted men, I believe?"

General Coleman. "By enlisted men of the Regular Army; yes, sir."

Mr. Snyder. "Now let us assume the enlisted strength of the Regular Army continues at the figure presently provided for, when do you estimate that you will reach the $5,000,000 objective?"

General Coleman. "The way it is going now, I should say in about 2 years. It is going up quite rapidly, I understand from conversations yesterday that the Regular Army now is approximately 450,000."

Panama Mobile Force

The maneuver of the Panama Mobile Force in the Pacora Area ended Thursday, 20 March, with a general critique of the exercise. This critique took place at the headquarters camp and was attended by the officers and non-commissioned officers of the several units which had participated in the maneuver.

The conference opened with a general resume of the activities of the week which was presented by the General Staff Officers of the Mobile Force. Two Infantry noncommissioned officers, Staff Sergeants Lee and Hudson, presented their reactions to the maneuver just completed. Each branch of the service was similarly represented by a speaker and their explanations of the problems presented to their arm or branch were extremely interesting.

Col. Clarence M. McMurray was in command of the attacking force and Col. George A. Sanford, the defending force commander, both gave excellent summaries of the movements of their troops and the two chief umpires also went over the salient points of the operation.

Maj. Gen. Walter E. Prosser Commanding the Panama Mobile Force, closed the session with a commendation of the officers and men who had taken part in the week's strenuous activity. He closed his remarks by reminding the assembly that the United States Army has never been beaten and that in the future, whatever might come, they would again "hold fast."

Observance of Good Friday

Commanding officers are authorized to excuse from duty soldiers who desire to attend Good Friday services either on the post or in adjacent communities for such a period as will enable them to be at the place of service from 12:00 noon until 3:00 p.m., Friday, 11 April, 1941, provided no interference with the public service is occasioned.

Seek "Blood Banks"

Legislation to permit the withdrawal of blood from a donor for deposit in "blood banks" for use in an emergency when donors are not available for blood transfusion and for other scientific and research purposes has been requested by the War Department. The present law covering blood transfusions permits compensation for the use of blood by members and former members of the Military establishment only when taken from the body of the donor and given into the body of a recipient.

In a letter to the speaker of the House inclosing a copy of the proposed bill, Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson wrote:

"The purpose of the proposed bill is to broaden the present legislation to permit the withdrawal of blood from a donor for addition purposes, i.e., for deposit in 'blood banks' for use in an emergency when suitable donors are not available for direct blood transfusion; for extracting the cellular elements from the blood for blood typing, and for other scientific and research purposes."

"Under the provisions of the present law, donors who are in the Government service may not be compensated for blood furnished for purposes other than for direct transfusion into the body of a recipient. Donors not in the Government service are compensated at the present time for blood furnished, as an item of supply, for any purpose. The proposed bill, if enacted into law, would permit the payment to donors, whether or not in the employ of the United States, for blood furnished by them for the purposes enumerated above, and for any other purpose which might arise in the future, as a result of advances in medical science, necessitating the purchase of human blood by the United States Government."

Promote Retired Officer

In a recent ruling, the Judge Advocate General of the Army held that an officer serving in France in grade of major who had been ordered to return to the United States for assignment to a new unit and consequent promotion was entitled to increased rank on the retired list under the provisions of the act of 13 June 1940.

The service-in-grade act provides for advancement one grade of any retired officer who "for services rendered during the World War was officially recommended in writing for promotion to increased rank . . . and who as evidenced by bestowal of Medal of Honor or Distinguished Service Cross or Distinguished Service Medal rendered exceptionally meritorious services or demonstrated gallantry in action beyond the call of duty."

The officer in question received the Distinguished Service Cross. In 1918 he was numbered among a group of "efficient" officers "deserving of promotion" scheduled to be ordered to the United States for assignment to new divisions in higher grades. He arrived after the Armistice and consequently was not promoted.

The JAG held that the officer's selection and his return to the United States satisfy the requirements of the act of 13 June 1940.

Rule on Emergency NCO Quarters

A recent decision of the Comptroller General has helped to clarify the basis upon which enlisted men of the Army and Navy may occupy low cost houses built by the Public Housing Administration.

The specific decision was that enlisted men of the Army occupying the quarters built by the U. S. Housing Authority at Anchorage, Alaska, must pay rental allowance, but would be paid quarters allowance to assist them to do so.

The low cost houses were built under title II, Public No. 671, 76th Congress, approved 28 June 1940, which provided that cost of the quarters should be met through rentals.

Accordingly, the Comptroller General pointed out that, when government owned quarters of the type customarily furnished noncommissioned officers were not available, the men should be permitted to rent project quarters at rentals fixed at rates sufficient to repay construction costs, and such men then should be paid the rental allowance.

To Replacement Center

The War Department announced this week the assignment of Brig. Gen. Charles D. Hartman, Assistant to The Quartermaster General, to command the Quartermaster Replacement Center, Camp Lee, Va. General Hartman is at present on duty in the Office of The Quartermaster General, Washington, D. C.

On 25 March 1940, General Hartman was made Chief, Construction Division, Office of The Quartermaster General. On 1 August 1940, he was promoted to brigadier general and assigned to duty as Assistant to The Quartermaster General, in charge of the Construction Division. Under his direction, the extensive construction program during the present emergency was inaugurated. For the past few months he has been on sick leave recuperating from illness due to a long siege of overwork.

General Hartman will relieve Col. John A. Warden, the present commander at Camp Lee, who has been assigned to command the Quartermaster Replacement Center at Ft. Francis E. Warren, Wyo.

Assignment of NG Officers

The War Department is receiving many requests for the transfer of officers inducted from the National Guard of the United States to an arm or service, other than that in which they are permanently commissioned, in order that they may be assigned to vacancies in that arm or service. The Department believes that the permanent transfer from one arm or service to another of an officer so inducted involves a complicated administrative procedure; and since the desired assignments may be made by detail, as indicated below, such transfers are not considered necessary at this time.

"Positions in inducted National Guard units that cannot be filled by the assignment of a National Guard officer commissioned in the arm or service in which the vacancy exists," the Department stated, "may be filled by the assignment of qualified National Guard officers of other branches, without reappointment of the officer concerned in the arm or service to which assigned. Such assignment may be made by the authority having assignment jurisdiction over the unit in which the vacancy exists and over the officer to be assigned to such vacancy without reference to the War Department; except in the case of positions in the Medical Department or Corps of Chaplains.

"Officers assigned to positions in an arm or service other than that in which commissioned, who are thereafter recommended for temporary promotion to higher grade in the Army of the United States, will be required to qualify for such promotion in the arm or service of the position for which promotion is recommended."

THE UNITED STATES NAVY and MARINE CORPS

sonnel legislation before us I will offer an amendment to take care of this situation by providing that all reserve officers on active duty shall get the same pay as regulars in the same rank with the same length of service. I plan to ask the Judge Advocate General of the Navy to draw up the proper bill or amendment for this purpose."

Representative Maas said the present difference in pay and allowances "goes back to a law passed in 1921 or 1922 that restricts the amount of pay and allowances that can be given reserve officers of the Navy. I was very much surprised to find out this week for the first time that this law is on the books. I have charts and figures in my office that show the great hardship this does to the reserve officer personnel."

Representative Maas said that the Army does not discriminate between reserve and regular officers and he felt the restriction on the Navy should be removed as soon as possible. He expressed the opinion that the amount involved would not be very large and that the Navy Department would have no objection to the proposal.

Marine Corps Activities

Brig. Gen. Ross E. Rowell, commanding the Marine Aircraft Wing, at San Diego, Calif., has been ordered to the Navy Department for special duty. Col. Roy S. Geiger, former commander of Marine Aircraft Group One, also has been ordered to the Department for special duty.

Later, as previously stated in the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL, General Rowell will return to San Diego to command Wing Two, attached to the 2nd Division, and Colonel Geiger, who has been selected for promotion to brigadier general, will go to command of Wing One, attached to the 1st Division.

There will be no central air command, as at present. The Marine Corps now has a single wing, commanded by General Rowell, with a group operating with each division. When the corps receives its 954 planes, it will have two wings, one with each division. The Marine Corps now has only 179 aircraft.

The first parachute troop unit has been organized in the Marine Corps. Capt. Robert H. Williams, 2nd Lt. Walter S. Osipoff and about 40 enlisted men, graduates of the first parachute training class at Lakehurst, N. J., have been ordered to the 2nd Division, San Diego, to form a parachute company. Two other classes are now in training at Lakehurst, and about 50 officers and men are receiving parachute training each month. Towers for training purposes are being procured for installation near San Diego, Calif.

Eventually, it is proposed to have a battalion of parachute troops detailed with each division.

Brig. Gen. Ralph S. Keyser, USMC-Ret., has been recalled to active duty and assigned this week to the Naval Examining Board, Marine Barracks, Washington. One other retired general officer is now on duty, Brig. Gen. R. P. Williams, who is president of the Examining Board.

The Marine Corps Reserve Policy Board will meet 7 April at headquarters to pass upon and make recommendations to the major general commandant on matters concerning the Marine Corps Reserve.

Brig. Gen. Samuel M. Harrington, USMC, director of the Marine Corps Reserve, is president of the board. The following officers are members, those members of the Reserve whose names are preceded by asterisks being on active duty:

Col. James L. Underhill, USMC.

*Lt. Col. Clark W. Thompson, USMCR(V). Lt. Col. John D. Macklin, USMCR(V).

Maj. Clayton C. Jerome, USMC.

Maj. Paul Sullivan, USMCR(V).

Khaki for Navy Personnel

BECAUSE it has been found that white uniforms aboard ships are too conspicuous, the Navy has adopted a khaki working uniform for both ships and shore stations. As previously stated in the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL, the uniform will be similar to that now authorized for naval personnel serving in submarines, submarine chasers, eagle boats and other small craft.

The general working uniform will be of khaki with bronze buttons. Insignia of officers' rank will be indicated by black silk embroidered stars and black mohair braid. Cap covers will be of the same material as the uniform.

Working dress for chief petty officers is the same as that for officers. Rating badges are to be worn in the same manner as prescribed at present.

No khaki uniforms will be provided for enlisted men below the first pay grade. Those who will be authorized to wear the khaki uniforms will be provided with dyes with which to dye their white working clothes.

Oppose West Coast USNA

The Navy Department this week turned thumbs down on proposed legislation providing for an additional Naval Academy in the Los Angeles, Calif., area and urged the rejection of the bill H. R. 1605 which would authorize $10,000,000 for this purpose. In submitting a report on the bill to the House Committee on Naval Affairs, Acting Secretary of the Navy Forrestal cited the increased expenses that would be involved and said that the division of the Naval Academy into two branches would be injurious to the spirit of unity now existing and would not be in accord with the President's program.

The Navy Department's report follows: "The Bill H. R. 1605 'Providing for an additional Naval Academy in the Los Angeles Harbor Area in the State of California, and for other purposes,' was referred to the Navy Department by your Committee with a request for report and recommendation.

"The purpose of the Bill H. R. 1605 is as indicated in its title.

"The bill further provides that the Secretary of the Navy shall be authorized to assign to the proposed Naval Academy such members of the Bureau of Engineering, professors, and teachers as are necessary for properly conducting such Naval Academy; that all the courses and training now conducted at the United States Naval Academy may be offered at the proposed Academy; that all of the laws, rules, and regulations applying to the United States Naval Academy shall apply to such Naval Academy and that one-half of all persons or midshipmen qualifying for entrance to the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis, Maryland, shall be assigned for training at said Los Angeles Harbor Naval Academy.

"The bill also authorizes $10,000,000 for purchasing a site and appurtenances for erecting buildings and for providing apparatus and all other necessary implements and such contingent expenses as may be necessary and proper in the judgment of the Secretary of the Navy for such an institution.

"The Navy Department on previous occasions has recommended against the enactment of legislation providing for the establishment of a Naval Academy on the Pacific Coast because the division of the Naval Academy into two branches would be most injurious to the spirit of unity existing and to the uniformity of training of naval officer personnel; because it appears that the Naval Academy at Annapolis, Maryland, can be rendered adequate for the present needs of the Navy; and because the combined cost of operating two academies would be much more than the cost of one and thus not be justified from the standpoint of economy.

"As these objections still obtain, the Navy Department recommends against enactment of the bill H. R. 1605.

"The Navy Department has been advised by the Bureau of the Budget that there would be no objection to the submission of this recommendation as the enactment of the proposed legislation would not be in accord with the program of the President."

Change Navy Cap Device

The Navy Department has announced that changes in the uniform cap worn by enlisted men will be effected in the near future. The familiar lettering across the caps will be changed to "U. S. Navy" or "U. S. Naval Reserve," eliminating the present insignia which names the ship or station to which the men are attached.

All personnel, when on active duty, will wear the cap ribbon designated "U. S. Navy" and all members of the Naval Reserve when in an inactive status and when performing training duty shall wear the cap ribbon with the designation "U. S. Naval Reserve."

Navy WO's Examination

The Navy Department has announced that competitive examinations will be conducted of candidates for appointment in the following warrant specialties—boatswain, carpenter, electrician, gunner, machinist, radio electrician, acting pay clerk, and pharmacist. The examinations will be held beginning Tuesday, 16 Sept. and end Saturday, 20 Sept.

On the same dates, competitive examinations will be conducted of candidates for appointment to the following warrant specialties for assignment to aviation duties: boatswain, gunner, machinist and radio electrician.

Adms. Woodward, Gannon, Retire

The Navy Department announced this week that Rear Admirals Clark Howell Woodward and Sinclair Gannon, U. S. Navy, were retired on 1 April, having reached the statutory retirement age of 64 years.

Secretary of the Navy Knox addressed congratulatory letters to both men.

Admiral Woodward served as Commandant of the 3rd Naval District, Headquarters, New York, and of the New York Navy Yard from 1 October 1937 until early in March 1941 when he was relieved of that duty by Rear Adm. Adolphus Andrews.

Admiral Gannon was detached in January from duty as senior Member of the Board of Inspection and Survey, Pacific Coast Section, Long Beach, California, and has been on leave prior to retirement.

Mass Singing in Navy

Rear Adm. Chester W. Nimitz, Chief of the Bureau of Navigation, has sent a circular letter to the naval service encouraging mass singing by naval personnel.

In the letter Admiral Nimitz stated that, "Mass singing has recognized beneficial effect on morale since it affords the individual an opportunity for a certain amount of self-expression otherwise rare in the routine of military operations."

$31,000,000 for Brooklyn Yard

"Be nice to that old Pontiac of mine—
it's never failed me once!"

A GENERAL MOTORS MASTERPIECE

"THERE'S SOMETHING about a Pontiac that grows on you the longer you drive it. Maybe it's the way Pontiac retains its youth . . . its pep . . . its lively performance, mile after mile, year after year. Maybe it's because it's so dependable and trouble-free. Or maybe it's a combination of all these that makes Pontiac owners so loyal.

"But it stands to reason that you can't drive the same car forever—and there's only one car that could ever make me part with my old Pontiac, that's a new Pontiac 'Torpedo'. That explains why I bought one of those big, roomy, smart-looking new 'Torpedoes', with body by Fisher, without even looking at any other cars.

"And I'm mighty glad I did—for this new Pontiac offers scores of features that assure even greater performance, comfort, dependability and economy. Yet, I was surprised to learn that it costs only a very few dollars more than the lowest-priced cars.

"You bet I'm proud to be the owner of a new Pontiac 'Torpedo'—but I must confess that I asked my dealer to be good to that old Pontiac of mine—it never failed me once!"

SATURDAY, APRIL 5, 1941

We could no more dispense with our military forces than we could dispense with our political forces.—CALVIN COOLIDGE

OUR PRIORITY LIST

1. Legislative assurance, now, that our land, sea, and air forces will be maintained at such strengths as may be determined by the War Department General Staff and the General Board of the Navy to be necessary to guard the nation and its interests against any enemy or combination of enemies.
2. Upward revision of pay schedules for commissioned, warrant and enlisted personnel, active and retired; all temporarily promoted officers to receive pay of grade in which serving.
3. A long range study by the General Board of the Navy to the end that an equitable and just system of promotion for the line and staff of the Navy and Marine Corps be enacted into law.
4. Revision of pension laws to assure service widows a living income.
5. Compensation for service personnel who use privately owned automobiles on government business.

THE IMPORTANCE OF THE MERCHANT MARINE as a factor in our defense has been shown anew by the developments in the current war. The insistent effort of the Navy has been directed toward the upbuilding of a Marine which would take care of our peacetime needs as well as those of war. The policy of the Service, in line with the policy of the country, has been executed with excellent judgment by the Maritime Commission, of which Rear Adm. Emory S. Land is chairman. But, unfortunately, money and time have limited construction, although in recent years, thanks to Representative Bland, Chairman of the House Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee, Congress has been more generous in authorizations and appropriations. The implication of the Lend-Lease Act is the delivery of the materials we are producing for the embattled democracies. But Axis submarines, planes and raiders, have cut deeply into the tonnage under the British and Allied Flags, and the replacements from the United States have been inadequate to make good the losses. The need of Britain for transportation is so pressing that wherever ships can be found they must be utilized. While the United States is justified legally in taking over the Axis and Danish vessels in our ports, which have been sabotaged or threatened with sabotage, undoubtedly the main purpose of such action was their use in the transportation of munitions to England, Greece and China. The moment such use is made of them, Hitler may decide to take drastic action. In any case he has served notice that ships trading with England will be sunk. Which brings up the question of Naval convoy. Isolationists in the Senate are agitating for a ban on shipping to England, more comprehensive and authoritative than that in the Lend-Lease Law. Even if such a ban were enacted, it is doubtful if it would restrict the Constitutional power of the President as Commander-in-Chief. From the way events are moving, it is easy to forecast that the Navy will be ordered to convoy at least up to the Atlantic limit of the Western Hemisphere. This would mean reduction in the losses of shipping, but the danger of war would be increased, since it is hardly likely that a Naval Commander would stand idly by and witness the sinking of ships placed under his guard. However, not only are vessels required for the carriage of munitions, but for service as auxiliary cruisers, submarine chasers, transports, etc. This emphasizes that the United States at all times must be provided with a Merchant Marine comparable with our requirements and responsibilities. It is to be hoped this important lesson of the war will not be forgotten by the people after peace has come again.

THE ANOMALOUS SITUATION whereby officers of the Regular Army are advanced to higher ranks in the Army of the United States, but are denied the pay of the grade to which promoted, may, at last, get legislative attention. The bill introduced by Representative Overton Brooks, of Louisiana, designed to correct the situation, has been referred to the Secretary of War for recommendation. The War Department will report favorably on the measure provided it gets the permission of the Bureau of the Budget. As a result of the thousands of temporary promotions which have been authorized in order to fill out the ranks of the Army of the United States there are many first lieutenants, captains, and majors who, because they are commissioned in the Regular Army, draw only the pay of their permanent (lower) grade. All officers of the Reserve Corps and National Guard draw the pay of the grade in which they are serving, regardless of their length of service, but, because of the peculiar provisions of the Pay Act, officers of the Regular Army can not draw the higher pay until they have served the legal number of years. The result is that officers of the Regular Army serving in the grade of major continue to draw captain's pay until they have served 14 years, captains draw first lieutenant's pay until they have served seven years, and first lieutenants draw second lieutenant's pay until they serve three years. Representative Brooks, who served in the World War with the Sixth Field Artillery, First Division, knows the effect such an unfair situation has on morale. He knows, too, that the expenditure required would be small compared with the beneficial results to the National Defense. The House Committee on Military Affairs should take the measure up at once and urge its enactment.

Literal compliance with instructions by officials of the Atlanta all star concert series almost caused a young air corps Lieutenant at Ft. Benning to miss the performance of the Ballet Russe.

A notice printed in the post's daily bulletin, however, straightened out the situation and the officer and his party will attend.

In Atlanta recently, Lt. Thomas Fletcher of the 16th Observation Squadron, Lawson Field, Ft. Benning, went to the ticket office to make reservations for the performance on 27 March. His parting instructions to the official were "don't forget to send them to Lawson Field, Ft. Benning."

The ticket seller complied. The letter came addressed: "Mr. Lawson Field, Ft. Benning, Georgia."

Ft. Dix—Sing Fong, a trainee from New York's Chinatown, makes a swell beef ragout but he has trouble grasping the elements of military courtesy.

Sing Fong entered the Army at Ft. Dix last week and was assigned to the Bakers and Cooks school. His commanding officer, Capt. C. W. Kramer, attempted to explain the insignia of rank and found that Private Fong thought of Captain's bars which look like this = signify the letter "H."

Captain Kramer, therefore, has undertaken the tutelage of Private Fong in matters military. Heretofore, he has been saluting the corporals, tipping his cap to sergeants and passing up the officers altogether.

"Pigs Is Pigs But Kittens Are Cats"
The following notice appeared in the Daily Bulletin of Randolph Field, Texas, recently:

"NOTICE: Born, believe it or not on the roof of my back porch, one litter of kittens—the mother, a large turquoise Persian cat. Will the owner or other irresponsible person please call for same at their earliest convenience to avoid further 'discouragement' of my household? Signed, Major Blank, No. — Military Plaza, Randolph Field, Texas."

Good Logic
The hired girl had been sent down to the brook to fetch a pail of water, but stood gazing at the flowing stream, apparently lost in thought.

"What's she waiting for?" asked her mistress, who was watching.

"Dunno," replied her husband, wearily. "Perhaps she hasn't seen a pailful she likes yet."

Miss "AVR" completed our 22 March limerick on the plight of the foresaken Army bride in the following manner:

O, pity the beautiful Army bride
Who no longer will be able to stride,
'Neath sabres on high
For they're not now G.I.
And only heaven above can provide.

For completion on 19 April, "JEH" offers a story of valor about a soldier. To us it sounds like a sad story but here 'tis anyhow:

There once was a soldier named Bill
Who set out to capture a hill

He ran into a nest
Of gunners, the best,

ASK THE JOURNAL

SEND your queries to the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL QUESTION EDITOR and an answer will be given in this column as soon as possible after receipt.

C. M. T.—Specific provision has been made for enlisted men of the National Guard to be discharged, upon request, to be enlisted in the Regular Army.

Ft. Dix, N. J.—One hundred new and modern apartments of four and five rooms each will be ready for married non-commissioned officers and civilian employees at Ft. Dix on 1 May, Col. C. M. Dowell, Commanding Officer, announced this week. The apartments are located in a newly-built section in nearby Wrightstown and were built by the Federal Defense Housing Project. Construction was started early last winter.

U. U. W.—Reserve officers above grade of lieutenant may not resign their commissions, and resignations of lieutenants will be accepted only if they prove their military pay would not be adequate for care of dependents.

E. B. C.—Reserve officers receive the pay of the grade in which serving, unlike Regular Army officers whose pay is based on a combination of grade and length of service.

10 Years Ago

Maj. Gen. Johnson Hagood, commanding general of the 7th Corps Area, is one of the ardent advocates of consolidation of the Coast Artillery and Field Artillery, a subject being studied by the War Department with the object of reporting on the matter to Congress.

20 Years Ago

General John J. Pershing was the principal speaker at a mass meeting held at Carnegie Hall, New York City, under the auspices of the Citizens Committee to Obtain Justice for the Wounded. He said in part: "No government is worthy of its name that fails in sympathy and care for the men made helpless in fighting its battles."

30 Years Ago

Lt. Comdr. Alfred W. Hinds, USN, in an article on submarines, concludes: "Submarines are destined to play a unique and most important part in the next great naval war. They will add many gray hairs to the heads of the battleship captains, and will send many a tar to the locker of Davey Jones."

50 Years Ago

The highly satisfactory results obtained with the 6-inch gun of 35 calibers recently built by the Ordnance Bureau of the Navy, and the general tendency to increase in length of bore now prevalent in foreign countries has induced the Bureau to design an 8-inch gun of 50 calibers.

75 Years Ago

The mustering out of volunteer troops in the Army is continuing steadily and is expected to be completed by 1 May. The number of volunteer troops is listed at a total of 66,985.

Like Uncle Sam's armed forces, Greyhound travel is streamlined, efficient. Travel by air-conditioned Super-Coach seems tailored-to-measure for men in the service. Greyhound trips cost far less than other travel ways—a fraction of the cost of driving a small private auto. This motor coach system serves more military camps and bases directly than any other transportation. Its frequent schedules and wide choice of routes are made to order for going on leave, getting back under the wire—and enjoying every hour of the trip.

It Takes the Blending of 33 Fine Brews*to Make One Beer So Delicious!

PABST Blue Ribbon has something you enjoy in no other beer: a BLEND of 33 fine brews to make one single glass!

As in the finest coffee and the finest champagne . . . it's expert blending that gives Pabst Blue Ribbon beer its smoother . . .

tastier . . . unvarying goodness.

At canteen or cafe, enjoy it in the dress parade bottle "with the blue ribbon on it"—or in handy cans. You'll notice when good fellows get together . . . Pabst Blue Ribbon Beer sits "at ease" with the Service.

SERVICE NEWS AND GOSSIP

Foreign Affairs—The Axis Powers have lost the diplomatic initiative as a result of the developments of the week. The seizure of their ships, or the burning and sinking of a few of them, and the escape of a few others to sea, have been of a Hemispherical character rather than of the United States alone. By this concerted measure, the World, and particularly the Belligerent Nations, have been notified that the Pan-American Republics are united in their determination to resist aggression, and to promote the defeat of Germany and Italy. Those Governments have addressed protests to all Nations responsible for the loss to them of their ships in American ports. The protests will be disregarded under international as well as domestic law, especially as there is ample proof that instructions had been given to the masters of the vessels to sabotage their commands. Advised that the instructions had emanated from Admiral Alberto Lais, Naval Attaché of the Italian Embassy, Secretary Hull notified the Italian Government that that officer was persona non grata. It will be recalled that shortly before our entrance into the First World War, President Wilson dismissed the German Naval and Military Attachés, Von Papen and Boy Ed for connection with numerous sabotage operations.

Other developments of great importance are the serious crippling of Italian sea power in the battle in the Ionian Sea, the continuing resistance of Yugoslavia to Axis domination, and the proposal for a Non-Aggression pact which Turkey has made to that country. In the light of these events, it is readily apparent why the visit of Foreign Minister Matsuoka to Berlin failed to be concluded with a joint statement committing Japan to further activity in behalf of the Axis Powers, and why his visit to Rome has not been productive of the enthusiastic expressions of eternal alliance, which would have been forthcoming had the circumstances been more propitious for the German and Italian cause.

What has happened to Axis ships in American ports and, to quote Secretary Hull, the "scant attention" which will be given to the protests concerning them, squarely puts up to Berlin and Rome the questions of what they will do in retaliation. The probability is that for the moment they will content themselves with words and that they will wait until the seized Danish, as well as the vessels which flew under their flags, are placed in use for the carriage of materiel to Britain and Greece. Both Hitler and Mussolini fully appreciate that that use will occur, and further that the United States is approaching nearer and nearer to convoy. Then will be the moment to act, especially as Hitler has warned that any ships carrying supplies to England will be torpedoed or bombed. In the meantime, doubtless the Dictators are thinking about the consequence of having the entire Western Hemisphere arrayed against them. What little trade they have with this Hemisphere will be almost completely cut off. Japanese, Russian, Spanish and Portuguese ships can still be employed, but their cargoes will be subject to capture, and the owners of those ships will be hesitant about letting them enter American ports, and will be extremely careful about the kind of goods accepted as cargoes. Again, if the Republics were willing to follow the lead of the United States in seizing vessels, there is little doubt that they will follow it in more warlike measures. In other words, a demonstration has been given of American solidarity, which Berlin and Rome probably feel they cannot afford to disregard.

There seems to be little doubt that the unity shown to exist in this Hemisphere has impressed Japan. Equally important in the effect upon that Empire is the destruction of such a large part of the Italian Navy in the Ionian Sea. This action occurred in a narrow Sea, within comparatively easy reach of Italian bases from which Italian and German planes could have been flown to attack the British Fleet. In the open Pacific, the Japanese Fleet could not be in such an advantageous position, unless it surrendered command of the Sea and permitted the severance of communications with the Japanese Army in China. Admitting the superiority of the Japanese to the Italian Navy, few doubt that Tokyo statesmen have given keen consideration to the Ionian Sea Battle, and are aware that as a result of it the British Admiralty can dispatch more battleships to the Pacific, or use them in the Atlantic. It is likely, therefore, that Japan will make no greater commitments to the Axis than those already agreed upon. The battle, too, has had its effect upon Turkey, which is now aware that supplies can reach her under British convoy with greater ease than has been the case hitherto. That nation also impressed by the loss of Mussolini's Ethiopian Empire, and the advance the British Army has made into Libya, and the several events in the Mediterranean region unquestionably have influenced her statesmen to show their sympathy for the firm attitude the new Yugo-Slavian Government has adopted toward the Axis.

President Roosevelt has in mind other forms of pressure to apply to the Axis. He indicated his purpose by announcing that a large number of 75's are to be sent promptly to Greece and by his manifest disposition to favor convoy. There are economic measures, too, which he is studying, and these will be applied at a moment he determines to be most effective.

Assistant Secretaries for Air—Further evidence that the long unfilled posts of Assistant Secretary of War for Air and Assistant Secretary of the Navy for Aeronautics may be filled shortly was contained in the House hearings on the Fifth Supplemental estimates. Representative Ross Collins, of Meridian, Miss., asked Under Secretary of War Patterson if there was anything in the rumor that an assistant secretary for air would be appointed. He phrased the question in different ways and each time Judge Patterson said, "It is under consideration," adding that "of course, the appointment is for the President to make." These posts have not been filled since before President Roosevelt's first term.

No inkling has come out as to if or when an Assistant Secretary of War will be appointed. When the new bill authorizing an Under Secretary of War in addition to the Assistant Secretary was enacted, Judge Patterson was elevated to the higher post, (his duties remaining what they were before) but the other post was never filled.

Remount Service—The Remount Division of the Quartermaster Corps began its Spring procurement campaign this week with purchases in sections of the country south of the east-west line between Colorado Springs and Kansas City. Purchases north of the line are scheduled to begin 1 May. The program calls for purchasing about 8,000 animals by 30 June which will bring the number of horses owned by the Army up to approximately 28,000. Most of the animals to be purchased now will be Cavalry riding horses. Purchases are made at Remount stations which are located at Front Royal, Va.; Lexington, Ky.; Kansas City, Kans.; San Angelo, Texas; Ft. Douglas, Utah; Colorado Springs, Col., and San Mateo, Calif. Buying is done by numerous individual boards consisting of one Quartermaster Corps officer and one Veterinary Corps officer.

Marine Corps—The 1st Marine Division, Fleet Marine Force, which has been training at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, since early October, 1940, is about to return to the United States. The 4th Defense Battalion, FMF, will remain at the island station. An announcement of the Navy Department said that the division would return "shortly." It is understood that the homeward voyage will be made before the end of April. That is was planned to return the division sometime in the near future was indicated by Marine Corps officials in their requests for funds for a training base near Wilmington, N. C., which could accommodate the entire division.

Such funds are being made available in the fifth supplemental appropriation bill for 1941, and it is expected that the divisions will be concentrated at the new base by mid-summer.

Present plans are to return some units to Quantico, Va., and others to Parris Island, S. C. Headquarters of Maj. Gen. Holland M. Smith, commanding general of the division, will be located at Quantico.

Restriction upon publication of ship movements prevents divulging of exact date of departure of the division from Cuba or announcement at this time of which units will go to each of the two Marine Corps stations. What is probable is that units who will go to Parris Island will be landed at Charleston, S. C., while troops going to Quantico will be disembarked at Norfolk, Va.

The division will return much stronger than when it sailed for Guantanamo Bay for to the original contingent of about 3,000 men have been added almost as many recruits as well as a number of Naval Reserve battalions.

Judge Advocate General's Department—Appointment of Maj. Arthur N. Ziegler, JAGD, USA, as General Counsel of the Office of the Administrator of Export Control, was announced this week by Brig. Gen. Russell L. Maxwell, Administrator of Export Control. In announcing the appointment, General Maxwell stated that the volume and complexity of the legal problems arising in the field of export control has made it necessary to coordinate the work of the legal staff. Major Ziegler has served with the Office of the Administrator of Export Control since its organization on 2 July 1940 and previous to his designation as General Counsel, Major Ziegler was Chief of its Administrative Division.

Bureau of Navigation—Because of the increased importance of recruiting activities in the expansion of the Navy, the recruiting section of the Bureau of Navigation has been established as a separate division of the bureau. Formerly in the enlisted personnel division, the recruiting division is under direction of Capt. E. M. Whiting, USN, who had been in charge of the former recruiting section.

Finance Department—A revised reprint of AR 35-5520 covering Allotments of Pay is now ready for distribution. The new print is dated 4 March 1941 and supersedes the one of the same number dated 15 Sept. 1939. The regulation is divided into six sections as follows: General; Accomplishment; Changes; Discontinuances, suspensions, and renewals; Sentences by court martial and changes in status of allottees; and Payment of allotments.

Also ready for distribution is War Department Circular No. 47 which covers Travel of the Army procurement authority for the fiscal year 1941. The first section of the new circular rescinds Section II of Circular No. 65, 1940, and substitutes new matter, while the Second Section amends Section two of Circular No. 64, 1940.

Naval Reserve—Capt. Edward Albert Evers, USNR, has been selected for promotion to rear admiral in the Naval Reserve to fill the vacancy which will be created 1 June by the retirement for age of Rear Adm. John T. Nelson, director of Naval Reserve for the 1st Naval District. Captain Evers was born 16 Jan. 1878 in New York City. He enlisted in the Illinois Naval Militia 7 Aug. 1897 and served aboard the USS Indiana during the Spanish American War, until September, 1898. On 1 April 1917 he accepted appointment in the National Naval Volunteers and on 7 April was called to active duty at headquarters, 9th Naval District, Great Lakes, Ill., where he has served ever since.

The selection board which recommended Captain Evers for promotion was headed by Rear Adm. Hayne Ellis, USN. Members were Rear Adm. Arthur P. Fairfield, USN; Rear Adm. Gilbert P. Rowcliff, USN; Rear Adm. Alexander Sharp, USN, and the present rear admiral of the Naval Reserve, John T. Nelson.

Capt. Robert C. Giffen, USN, who will soon make his number as rear admiral, has been detached from duty as director of the Naval Reserve Policy Division in the Office of the Chief of Naval Operations and has been ordered to command cruiser division seven.

National Guard—A meeting of the Executive Council of the National Guard Association will be held in Washington, D. C., on Saturday and Sunday, 5 and 6 April. Among matters to be discussed is the question of the strength of the National Guard, its organization, and the amount of training equipment which the several states feel they can maintain after the return of the National Guard to state control. Maj. Gen. John F. Williams, commander of the National Guard Bureau, and Lt. Col. Arthur V. Winton, executive officer, will attend.

A new and modern system of office equipment is now being installed in the Personnel Division of the National Guard Bureau, replacing equipment that has been in use for the past twenty years. The installation includes transcribing data now carried on a number of forms to an individual form for each officer and placing him in the proper position in his tactical organization. It is planned after this work is completed to photostat the entire set-up and furnish copies to Corps Areas and Adjutant Generals of the states yearly or perhaps twice a year. The Bureau has suggested that Adjutant Generals visiting the Bureau inspect the new equipment with the thought of adopting a similar arrangement in the states. It is hoped that the work will be completed by 1 June.

Col. Archibald D. Crowley, Inf., has reported for duty in the Bureau and has been assigned Chief of the Organization and Training Division.

The Bureau is concerned about the delay in closing property and financial accounts in the states where the National Guard has been entirely inducted into Federal service. A letter has been sent to the United States property and disbursing officers of each state directing an early closing of such accounts. Corps Area commanders also have been contacted with the suggestion that every effort be made to complete this work by 1 May. Civilian personnel now authorized for the United States officers of property and disbursements will probably be reduced materially in the next thirty days.

The termination of Federal recognition of officers found to be physically disqualified upon examination at the time of induction is proceeding rapidly. This withdrawal also extends to officers discharged because of dependency or employment in key industries.

Alaskan Defense Command—A survey is being made at all posts and stations of the Alaska Defense Command for the purpose of determining facilities available for an "all-out" morale program designed to provide healthy activity for the personnel of the command. Orders for the survey were issued by order of Brig. Gen. Simon B. Buckner, USA, commanding the Alaskan Defenses.

Various recreations, including sports, theatrical entertainments, orchestras, group sings, and hobbies, are to be instituted by each of the posts and stations to provide recreation for the personnel that is not detrimental or injurious to the morale of the force. Reports of the progress of the program will be entered by each post each quarter beginning 30 June 1941.

Bureau of Medicine and Surgery—To meet needs of the Navy for hospital corpsmen, 1,100 men will be enrolled as soon as possible in corpsmen ratings in the volunteer Naval Reserve (Class V-6) and called to active duty shortly after being enlisted.

Enlistments in the various Hospital Corps ratings in Class V-6 of the Naval Reserve will be determined by the following factors: Enlistments as chief pharmacist's mate, acting appointment will be limited to those applicants who have had previous naval or military training, and who, in addition to being qualified in their specialty, are able to stand watches as chief pharmacist's mate. Enlistments as pharmacist's mate, first class, will be limited to qualifications for chief, except with a lesser degree of naval or military experience. Enlistments as pharmacist's mate, second class, will be limited to college graduates, qualified medical technicians in the specialties pertaining to the Medical Department; graduate male nurses; graduates in pharmacy; or an applicant who is a registered pharmacist in civilian life. Enlistments as pharmacist's mate, third class, will be limited to applicants who have had experience in minor surgery, equivalent to that contained in the various Red Cross first-aid courses; experienced orderlies in civilian hospitals; applicants who have recently qualified in a Medical Department technical specialty, but who have had but a short time practical experience in their specialty. Enlistments as hospital apprentice, first class, will be limited to applicants who have had experience equivalent to a Junior Red Cross first-aid course; who have a particular desire or liking for Hospital Corps duties.

Applicants for enlistment in all Hospital Corps ratings will be required to demonstrate their professional qualifications for enlistment in these ratings by passing such examinations as may be required by the medical officer at a main Navy Recruiting Station.

Despite scheduled withdrawal of the 1st Marine Division from Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, the Naval Mobile Base Hospital at that locality will not return to the United States at this time, it was indicated by Navy medical officers this week. With the 4th Defense Battalion, Fleet Marine Force, and other Naval units remaining at Guantanamo Bay, need for a hospital at that point still continues. Capt. Walter A. Vogelsang, (MC), USN, has been ordered from the Naval Hospital, Parris Island, S. C., effective 1 April, to command the Mobile Base Hospital. He will relieve Capt. Lucius Johnson whose new assignment has not yet been announced.

Capt. Thomas W. Raison, (MC), district medical officer of the 6th and 7th Naval Districts, has been relieved for assignment to other duties in the 6th District by Capt. Edward H. H. Old, (MC), USN-Ret., who has reported for active duty.

Dr. Henry L. Bockus of the graduate school of medicine, University of Pennsylvania, will be guest speaker at the next meeting of medical and dental officers of the Navy on duty in the District of Columbia and vicinity. Dr. Bockus will speak on "Liver Function Tests in the Diagnosis and Management of Jaundice." The meeting will be held in the Naval Medical School at 8 p.m., 7 April.

Army Chaplains—Chaplain William R. Arnold, Chief of Chaplains, has called attention of all Army Chaplains to War Department Circular No. 46, 21 March 1941, which authorizes commanding officers to excuse from duty soldiers who desire to attend Good Friday services either on the post or in adjacent communities for such a period as will enable them to be at the place of service from 12 noon until 3 p.m., provided no interference with the public service is occasioned.

The Office of Chief of Chaplains this week cited a situation at Ft. Ord, Calif., as an indication of the soundness of the policy of religious community cooperation fostered by the War Department and the churches. At Ft. Ord the Post Chaplain invited a civilian minister to speak at religious services, after which ten local churches invited Army chaplains to be speakers at Sunday services. Chaplains taking part in this community endeavor included E. L. Kirtley, Theo. W. Barron, William V. Morgan, William M. Frost, Hal C. Head, Kenneth L. Ahl, Edward J. Fleisher, Norman E. Edwards, Albert V. Murray, Henry T. Praed, John R. Wright and J. C. Crowson.

Chaplain William A. McKee, stationed at Lawson Field, Ft. Benning, Ga., for the past four months has been transferred to the main post where he will serve as Post Hospital Chaplain. Prior to being stationed at Ft. Benning, Chaplain McKee, who holds the rank of Major, was on duty for six years with the Civilian Conservation Corps.

One hundred thousand copies of a new hymnal entitled "The Song and Service Book, Army and Navy, for Field and Ship" have been ordered for the Army. The War Department also has ordered 50,000 copies of another new and larger hymnal called "Hymnal, Army and Navy" which is a more comprehensive work designed for chapel use. Both volumes are designed to meet all sorts of conditions in the field where facilities for worship must be improvised, and both are divided into three sections for use by members of the Protestant, Catholic and Jewish faiths. The two new books are the result of two years of study and effort which began in 1939 when the Chaplains' Association of the Army designated a hymnal committee consisting of Chaplains William R. Arnold and Chaplains Ivan L. Bennett and Walter B. Zimmerman, to develop a new hymnal.

Age requirements in the Chaplains Reserve have been ordered relaxed by the War Department to enable older chaplains to apply for extended active duty for service other than with troop units. The new ruling will make chaplains who are physially fit up to 60 years of age in any grade eligible for assignment to extended active duty in corps area service commands, other than replacement centers, but not with troop units. Previously the age limit for chaplains eligible for extended active duty has been 50 for captains and 54 for majors.

Air Corps—Army research experts at Wright Field are looking forward to the day when airplane power plants, delivering eight thousand horsepower—four times the power of the biggest engines now being tested for the nation's newest warplanes—will be ready to go on the test stands for rigorous acceptance tests which all new engines must pass if they are approved for service in Army planes.

The Wright Field power plant laboratory, engine research center of the Material Division of the Air Corps, is now working with engine manufacturers to develop aviation engines with a maximum power for each pound of weight.

While no experiments for planes of such size are being contemplated this year or possibly next, the latest equipment now being delivered to the Wright Field has been constructed with the goal of high craft in mind.

Formal opening of the newest addition to the New England Aircraft School, New England's first school designed exclusively for the intensive training of the Air Corps crew chiefs, civilian aircraft mechanics and aircraft engine mechanics, will be held on 14 April. The new addition, built at a cost of $135,000, includes a modern hanger with facilities for repair and reconditioning of aircraft, specialized shops for metal working, welding, wood working, five modern class rooms, lecture rooms, as well as complete residential apartments.

Personnel of the school include Hilding N. Carlson, formerly with the Army Air Service, as president; Maj. E. Stanley Beck, a member of the Massachusetts National Guard Air Service, vice president. Maj. Leo J. Griffin, AC, USA, is in charge of Army students, and Capt. L. O. Ryan, AC, USA, is supervisor of the mechanics school.

Field Artillery—Each year the United States Field Artillery Association presents a medal to the outstanding member of the ROTC unit at each college or university, where there is a senior Field Artillery unit. Word has just been received that the medalist for 1941 at Arkansas State College is Louie N. Rodgers, of Luxora, Arkansas. The medal will be presented 9 May at graduation parade. Cadet Rodgers has made an outstanding record in the college being Junior class president, Cadet Lieutenant, honor student 1939-40 and member of Scabbard and Blade fraternity.

Records show that a great proportion of last year's medal winners were recommended for commissions in the Regular Army and are now on duty in Regular Army units.

A general officer recently wrote to the Chief of Field Artillery: "I have been highly pleased with the performance of our reserve officers. Fourteen of my battery commanders are reservists. The ROTC, on which you worked so hard during your various tours in the office, may well be our salvation. When I compare these men with the ones I got in 1918, who were earnest and willing but lacked the background that these boys have, I am impressed with the fact that our success in this emergency will be due, in large part, to what they learned in the ROTC." Also, reports from our contemporaries abroad indicate that we are particularly fortunate in having the ROTC as a source of officer material during this emergency.

Medical Department—The Medical Field Service School, Carlisle Barracks, Pennsylvania, has begun the instruction of a class of 505 officers of the Medical Department of the Army. This is the largest class in the history of the School. The officers are of the Regular Army, Organized Reserves, and the National Guard. The group includes members of the Medical Corps, Dental Corps, Veterinary Corps, Medical Administrative Corps, and Sanitary Corps. These five corps are constituents of the Medical Department of the United States Army. The student officers are drawn from nearly every one of the forty-eight states of the Union, and have been selected by the War Department for this special instruction. They will receive training in field sanitation, tactics, map reading, training of enlisted men of the Medical Department, administration, and kindred subjects. There is beginning also a class of 100 enlisted men who will be trained as sanitary technicians. The instruction is under the supervision of Col. John Mitchell Willis, MC, Assistant Commandant, who has been Acting Commandant since the death of Brig. Gen. Roger Brooke last December. Ordinarily, the number of officers in each class is less than a hundred. Temporary quarters have been provided for the officers. The facilities of the School for this emergency class are considered adequate.

Parachute Group—Transfer of two more officers to Headquarters, Parachute Group, Ft. Benning, Ga., was announced this week by the War Department as the Army took steps to procure additional jumping officers and enlisted men for the eventual activation of the 502d, the 503d and the 504th Parachute Battalions. To the group headquarters, which began to function 1 April under command of Lt. Col. William C. Lee, Inf., have been assigned Maj. Clarence M. Tomlinson, Inf., as supply officer, and Capt. Roy Lindquist, Inf., as adjutant and plans and training officer.

Officers in the continental United States volunteering for these assignments must be reported to the Chief of Infantry not later than 1 May, and those in foreign departments, 1 June. Officers of the Regular Army must have had at least one year's service with troops as of 1 Sept. 1941. For Reserve officers the requirement is six months with troops. Vacancies are open to second and first lieutenants, captains and majors. Majors must not be over 40 years of age. The maximum age for captains and lieutenants is 35 years.

The 502d Parachute Battalion is scheduled for activation 1 July 1941; the 503d, 1 Sept.; and finally, the 504th on 1 Nov. With four such battalions in service, the Army will have almost 2,000 in its Parachute Group. Approximately 1,500 officers and men of this force will be jumpers. The four battalions will be at Ft. Benning, Ga.

Coast Artillery Corps—Maj. Gen. Joseph A. Green, Chief of Coast Artillery, is due to return to Washington this week-end from an inspection of Coast Artillery installations on the West Coast which he began 21 March. General Green has visited Ft. Stevens, Ore., Ft. Worden, Wash., Ft. Winfield Scott, Calif., Ft. Rosecrans, Calif., the replacement center at Camp Callan, Calif., Ft. MacArthur, Calif., and the training center at Camp Haan, Calif. During General Green's absence, Col. Kenneth T. Blood, executive officer, has been acting Chief of Coast Artillery.

Camp Davis, N. C., has another new name. The station now is known as an Antiaircraft Training Center, to conform to the designation of somewhat similar posts throughout the country. Previously, the station was called "Unit Training Center," and still earlier it bore with surprising fortitude the self-explanatory (?)

designation—"Miscellaneous Station." Selective service trainees are soon to report at Camp Davis to fill out eight new regiments of antiaircraft artillery.

Army Nurses Corps—Capt. Burdette B. Sherer, Assistant Superintendent of the Army Nurses Corps, has been relieved of duty in the Surgeon General's Office in Washington, D. C., and assigned to La Garde, La., General Hospital where she will be in charge of the nursing service. Captain Sherer has been on duty in Washington since April, 1938 and was promoted to Assistant Superintendent in October, 1940.

The first group of Reserve Nurses to be selected for promotion received favorable consideration by the Promotion Board which met 24 March. The eligibility of the candidates will be determined by a written examination to be given on 5 May. Twenty-two Reserve Nurses are included in this group and are now assigned to stations throughout the nine Corps Areas. Other Reserve Nurses will be considered for promotion as additional stations are opened and the need for their services increases. These nurses have been recommended for promotion to Chief Nurse with the rank of First Lieutenant.

As of 1 April there were 3,033 nurses on duty in the Army of which 1,243 are regulars and 1,790 are reserves. The authorized strength for the fiscal year 1941 is 6,154 and for 1942 will be increased to 8,237.

Quartermaster Corps—Repair shops for clothing and equipment have been authorized for Ft. Devens, Mass., Ft. Dix, N. J., Camp Lee, Va., Ft. Meade, Md., Indiantown Gap, Pa., Camp Forrest, Tenn., Camp Claiborne, La., Camp Livingston, La., Camp Robinson, Ark., Ft. Riley, Kans., Ft. Leonard Wood, Mo., Camp Bowie, Texas, and Pine Camp, N. Y. At these and additional stations to be named later repairs will be made to such items as coats, trousers, breeches, overcoats, raincoats, shoes, blankets, mosquito bars, barrack bags, mattresses, pillows and tent material. Civilian labor will be used under the supervision of Army officers. A staff of 50 employees will be provided for 20,000 soldiers, with another 25 employees for each additional 10,000 troops to be serviced.

Capt. E. C. R. Lasher, of the Transportation Division, told a meeting of the Great Lakes Regional Advisory Board in Buffalo, N. Y., last week that transportation of troops and supplies will be greatly increased during the next three months but that steps have been taken to keep it moving freely. He cited figures for the month of February, 1941, which showed that during that month the Quartermaster Corps routed 19,860 carloads of freight and 127,083 troops, which he said "is only a beginning."

A total of 50 Reserve Officers are taking a two-month training course at the motor transport school at Holabird Depot, Baltimore, Md. This course replaces the former one-month refresher course. A new class will begin studies on 1 May.

Because of a shortage of housing at the Philadelphia Quartermaster school the following information has been issued for the benefit of Reserve Officers and enlisted men ordered to attend. Due to the location of the school in a manufacturing district, it is necessary for officers to rent quarters a considerable distance away where rentals range from $20 per month per room up. An officer occupying quarters at his post must get a release from quarters to draw commutation for quarters at the school. The same is true of automobiles, the rental of garage space being necessary at a cost of from $5 per month up. There are good street car accommodations, however. Officers also are cautioned not to bring their families due to housing conditions and excessive cost; to bring their Transcript of Pay with them, and to have sufficient funds on arrival to defray their expenses to the following pay day. Enlisted students are quartered in dormitories with all facilities but the same situation exists as to families and automobiles as applies to officers. Service records and allied papers should be forwarded immediately to permit prompt pay, and students' indebtedness should be cleared up prior to departure for their home stations.

Dental Corps—The Surgeon General has issued Circular Letter No. 26, dated 28 March, which is intended to clear up misinterpretation of the dental requirements for induction examinations as set forth in Section VII, MR 1-9, as a result of which there has been a seemingly high rate of rejection because of dental defects. It is reported that Selective Training and Service officials are taking steps to prepare similar information for draft boards and also has arranged to appoint a dentist to each of the 6,400 draft boards in the United States. The rigid interpretation of the dental requirements has resulted, among other causes, in the rejection of an intercollegiate track champion who was in perfect physical condition otherwise but failed to pass the dental examination.

Ten Regular Army Dental Corps officers began a 30-day course at the Medical Field Service School, Carlisle, Pa., on 1 April, and 10 more officers will start a similar course on 1 May. Officers reporting to the school this week were: Captains William J. McAllister, Ft. Riley, Kans.; Donald L. Cook, Ft. Knox, Ky.; Winlaw A. Priebe, Ft. Ethan Allen, Vt.; Raymond Waldman, Ft. H. G. Wright, N. Y.; George H. Moulton, Ft. Sweeny, Ga.; First Lieutenants James E. Chipps, Ft. DuPont, Del.; Grayson E. Garrison, Scott Field, Ill.; John R. Law, General Dispensary, Boston, Mass.; Thomas R. Haddock, Ft. Sill, Okla., and Jack M. Messner, General Dispensary, Washington, D. C.

Corps of Engineers—A detachment of the 11th Engineers, Panama Canal Department, consisting of Engineer Officers and 50 enlisted men, with three trucks and an air compressor for equipment, have just completed a reconnaissance and repair mission covering eighty-seven miles. This was undertaken for the purpose of improving secondary roads and bridges in the Panama area. During their tour in the field, this detachment repaired three existing bridges, strengthened three others, and improved an important ford, making it passable for the mechanized troops of the Mobile Force. This detachment, from material at hand such as trees and brush in the immediate vicinity, built a sixteen-foot stringer bridge. They had it completed in fifty-five minutes and it was strong enough for the mechanized outfit to cross.

A coordinated motor movement to Panama City, Fla., and return, by all non-divisional Engineer units at Ft. Benning, is being planned for the period 7-14 April. Lt. Col. William F. Heavey, commanding officer of the 20th Engineer Regiment, will be in command. The movement will combine a tactical situation in which all units on the march will participate. Included will be the 20th Engineer Regiment (Combat), the 87th Engineer Battalion (Heavy Ponton), the 71st Engineer Company (Light Ponton), and the 64th Engineer Company Topography. Arrangements for the combined march are being made by an advance party consisting of Capt. T. J. Hayes, Lt. Herschel E. Linn, Technical Sergeant Thomas N. Haddon and Staff Sergeant John A. Wagner, all of the 20th Engineers.

Army Industrial College—Graduation exercises were held Friday, 4 April, at the college auditorium in Washington with Under Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson making the principal address and presenting diplomas. Members of the graduating class held an April Fool's Day dinner on 1 April at the Officers' Club, Bolling Field, D. C. After greetings by Col. Frank C. Whitehead, USMC, commandant of the college; Lt. Col. Edmund W. Hill, AC, commandant of Bolling Field, and Lt. Col. R. W. Brown, JAGD, assistant commandant of the college, the dinner resolved itself into a burlesque of school life with Maj. Frank E. Benedict, AC, serving as master of ceremonies. Colonel Whitehead presented a diploma to each of the wives of officers attending the school giving her the degree of "Spinster of Domestic Felicity," which he said she had earned by enduring her husband during the arduous period when he was attending school and locking himself up at night studying. A humorous "Letter to Mom" was read recounting an imaginary officer-student's hilarious experiences, and difficulties encountered during the past two months while the building was being completed were demonstrated by hammers, saws, interruptions and gangs of workmen. The humorous part of the program opened with a threat by the toastmaster to "shoot any guy who tries to make a speech."

In his address to the graduates, Secretary Patterson said: "The job which you have to do is one of superlative importance in this age of machine-shop wars. An Army marches on its stomach, now as always, but today it also marches on lathes and rimmers and drills and gears. As this defense job grows, I can say truthfully to every class that is graduated from the Army Industrial College that its mission is the most important in the history of the college and of the country. That is true of your class. It will be true of the next class, and the next."

The new class at the college will start 10 April and the first problem will be taken up 12 April with Lt. Col. B. L. Neils, QMC, as instructor. The new class will start out with problems of economic warfare in which especial emphasis will be placed on procurement problems. A total of 74 Army and 11 Navy officers have enrolled for the new course and others are expected, including several from the Marine Corps.

Medical Corps—Faced with several thousand vacancies in the Medical Reserve, the War Department announced this week that qualified doctors of medicine of draft age are encouraged to apply for commissions in the Reserve, regardless of whether they have been inducted or are awaiting induction. Successful applicants will be commissioned as first lieutenants, even if it is not practicable to order them to extended active duty immediately.

The Panama Canal Department Surgeon, Col. J. W. Sherwood, MC, Quarry Heights, expects that all military personnel in that Department will be immunized with yellow fever vaccine starting shortly after 15 April 1941. Authority also has been received there from the Surgeon General of the Army in Washington for making the treatment available to such civilian employees of the Army and dependents of military personnel, who may request this immunization. It is planned to send "Immunization Teams," consisting of a medical officer and three medical technicians and clerks, to the hospitals or dispensaries on each Post. They will perform as many as 450 immunizations per day until the entire Command has been treated. The vaccine is of a special type which must be maintained in a frozen condition in refrigeration units until its use.

Army Veterinary Corps—Examination recently given enlisted men in the Veterinary Corps are now being corrected and the work is expected to be completed within the next two weeks. Pending completion of the work of correcting the papers no promotions are being made.

Old Golds.

MEN may not understand it—but a new hat means a world of difference to your spirits—makes you a new woman, with new zest for life. And that's what something new is doing for a famous cigarette, too—giving it new tang, new zip, new spirit!

It's the new Old Gold—enriched with an added touch of a special imported tobacco! You'll taste the difference with the first puff—the full-flavored goodness of old, gold tobaccos aged for years for mellowness. Try a new Old Gold—more pleasant tasting than ever now that something new has been added!

* NEW—A prized imported tobacco, from the eastern Mediterranean—a tobacco whose small aromatic leaves impart new life and zest to the famous Old Gold blend! So every moment you spend with Old Gold will be even more pleasant.

BOTH the Army and the Navy claimed the social spot-light in inaugurating the week's activities. At Fort Myer, the second event of the Horse Show was the attraction, followed by a delightful tea in the charming quarters of the Chief of Staff, Gen. George C. Marshall and Mrs. Marshall, the house gay with spring flowers.

Some of those seen in the spacious dining room, where an impromptu bar was set up, an adjunct to the tea table laden with turkey sandwiches and Smithfield ham, and a small table offering all sorts and kinds of cheeses, were Maj. Gen. and Mrs. L. J. McNair, Comdr. and Mrs. Forrest Sherman, Lt. Col. C. H. Gearhart, and Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Guy V. Henry who were accompanied by Miss Patricia Henry, one of the best of the riders to take part.

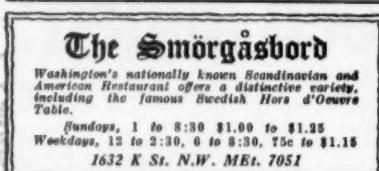

Assisting Mrs. Marshall, who wore a gown of gold lame, made in shirtwaist model, were Mrs. William Bryden, Mrs. Julian L. Schley, Mrs. William Gordon, Mrs. Albert Kenner, Mrs. Harry Allen, Mrs. Frank Allen, Mrs. Claude Adams, whose husband, Major Adams, is aide to Gen. Marshall, and Mrs. George G. Elms, wife of Major Elms who was in charge of arrangements.

At the National Cathedral, the Navy held the attention and admiration of some thousand or more persons at the special service held there, when some eighty Midshipmen from the Naval Academy formed the choir, marching into the vast edifice two by two in uniform and preceded by the crucifer and two of their own members carrying the Stars and Stripes and the Navy flag, with one other flag, a cathedral flag, a memorial gift in connection with the gathering of the Navy Sponsors who held their annual convention this past week, and members of whom sat in special seats in the nave of the Cathedral.

Mrs. Knox, wife of the Secretary of the Navy, and Mrs. Wallace, wife of the Vice President, received the Navy Sponsors at the tea at the White House, Tuesday, Mrs. Roosevelt being out of town, and presiding at the charmingly appointed table in the state dining room were Mrs. Harold R. Stark, wife of the Chief of Naval Operations, and Mrs. James Forrestal, wife of the Undersecretary of the Navy.

MRS. L. O. CARTER
who, before her recent marriage to Lt. Landis O. Carter, AC, at Corozal, was Miss Bonita Mary Brady, daughter of Col. and Mrs. Robert C. Brady, QMC, USA.

Weddings and Engagements

THE historic chapel at Ft. Monroe, Va., was the scene of a full military wedding at 4:30 in the afternoon of 22 March, when Miss Marian Louise Marsh, daughter of Col. and Mrs. Clarence T. Marsh, CAC, USA, became the bride of Maj. William T. S. Roberts, Inf., USA, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Archer Roberts of Washington, D. C.

Altar decorations were white gladioli, snapdragons, ferns, palms, and white tapers.

Chaplain James H. Bagley officiated. Mrs. Robert DeMerritt of Ft. Monroe played the wedding music.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a bridal gown of ivory satin made on classic lines with sweetheart neckline, long pointed sleeves, and court train. The veil of bridal illusion, full length, was held in place by a half circle of orange blossoms, and her bouquet was white roses and lilies of the valley.

She had as her attendants, Mrs. Jessie B. Pleasants, a cousin of the bride, from Wilson, N. C., matron of honor; Mrs. Gilbert B. Hall of Langley Field; and Miss Emily Tilton of Ft. Monroe, bridesmaids.

Archer V. Roberts of Washington, D. C., the bridegroom's brother, was the best man. The groomsmen were Lt. William Willson, Washington, D. C.; Maj. William Pence, Ft. Jackson, S. C.; Lt. Gilbert Hall, Langley Field; Capt. Donald Smith; Capt. K. C. Smith and Capt. Russell Nelson of Ft. Monroe, Va.

The reception following the ceremony was held in the blue room of the Chamberlin Hotel. Mrs. Roberts performed the traditional ceremony of cutting the cake with Major Roberts' saber.

The bride chose for traveling a dark two-tone aqua suit of sheer wool, with brown accessories. After a trip through Virginia, West Virginia, and Kentucky, Major and Mrs. Roberts will be home April first at Ft. Knox, Ky.

The marriage of Miss Marcia Brooks Eddy, daughter of Col. and Mrs. Robert Collins Eddy of Belmont, Mass., to Lt. (jg) Edward Sentman Arentzen, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Arentzen of Stratford, N. J., took place Saturday afternoon, 29 March, at a candle light service at All Saints Episcopal Church, Belmont, Mass. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. William Brewster. A reception followed at the home of the bride's parents, 17 Hillcrest Road, Belmont.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white embossed mousseine, her long tulle veil was fastened to a Juliet cap of pearls, and she carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley and bouvardia. Mrs. William W. Keller, wife of Lt. William W. Keller, USN, Lansdowne, Pa., was the matron of honor. The bridesmaids were: Misses Margaret Paine, Charlestown Navy Yard; Judith Peterson, Newton Center; Jean Saurwein, Belmont; and Alberta Arentzen, sister of the bridegroom.

Charles C. Arentzen of Stratford, New Jersey, was best man for his brother. The ushers were: Lt. (jg) Ralph Kissinger, Jr., Lt. (jg) John C. Dyson, Lt. (jg) Paul K. Taylor, Lt. (jg) Frank W. Taylor, Lt. (jg) Lewis A. Rupp, Ens. James F. Ellis, Jr., and Ens. Frank Cox Jones.

After a short wedding trip, Lieutenant Arentzen and his bride will live at Arlington Heights, Mass.

On Friday evening 28 March the beautiful Post Chapel at Ft. Benning, Ga., specially decorated with potted palms, baskets of Easter lilies, and candelabra of burning tapers, was the scene of the wedding of Miss Catherine Louise Paxton and Lt. Eric Ray Edgerton, of Ft. Benning. The bride is the daughter of Lt. Col. Orsen E. Paxton, USA, and Mrs. Paxton, of New York City, and is a niece of Chaplain Lt. Col. Earl D. Weed, USA, and Mrs. Weed, of Ft. Benning. Chaplain Weed officiated at the wedding.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of heavy ivory satin and a bertha of mousseine-de-sois appliqued with lace; her veil of bridal illusion was caught to the head with a wreath of orange blossoms and fell in soft folds to the hem of the long train; she carried a bouquet of white gladioli and lilies-of-the-valley.

Miss Shirley Higgins, daughter of Col. Wilfred Higgins, USA, and Mrs. Higgins, of Ft. Benning, was maid of honor and the bride's only attendant.

Lt. John E. Miley was the groom's best man. Lts. Lewis L. Copley, Francis J. Allen, E. Stanton McKee, John Baskin, Richard I. Manning and H. V. Traywick, all of the 8th Infantry, Ft. Benning, were the ushers, and formed an arch of crossed

The marriage was solemnized at a nuptial mass at St. Peters Church in Montgomery and followed by a small reception for intimate friends at Colonel Huff's quarters at Maxwell Field.

After 1 April, Lieutenant and Mrs. Zienowicz will make their home in Tampa, Fla., as Lieutenant Zienowicz has been ordered to MacDill Field for duty.

A brilliant military wedding was that solemnized Friday last, 28 March at Ft. Sam Houston, when Miss Frances Roffe, daughter of Lt. Col. and Mrs. A. W. Roffe, was married to Lt. Robert E. Gideon, Jr., AC, USA.

The bride was given in marriage by her father at the ceremony which was conducted at 8:30 in the chapel at Ft. Sam Houston, and followed by a reception at the Officers' Club.

An exquisite hand-made veil enveloped her slender figure, falling from a wreath of orange blossoms over a gown of white satin made with sweetheart neck, trimmed with pearl-studded lace; a basque with leg-o-mutton sleeves and a full fan-shaped train. She carried a white Prayer Book ornamented with a white orchid and valley lilies.

Her maid of honor was Miss Agnes Evans of Washington and other attendants were Mrs. Alvin Gillem, wife of Lieutenant Gillem; and the Misses Katherine Pool, Jane Honeycutt, Jean Holden, Virginia Short and Cheney MacNab.

Lieutenant Gideon has been assigned to duty at Randolph Field, as an instructor, and there he will take his bride after a honeymoon trip.

The engagement of Miss Jane Milbourne Hart and Lt. Matthew Trimble Sawtelle, has been announced by her mother, Mrs. Edson B. Hart of Bloomington, Ill.

Lieutenant Sawtelle is the son of Mrs. Henry Fennel Sawtelle of Chevy Chase, Md. The wedding is scheduled to take place in May, on May Day in fact, at All Saints Church in Chevy Chase, at 8:00 o'clock.

Graduating from the University of Illinois, and being a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma, the bride-to-be is now serving as vice president of the Kappa Alumnae in Washington, D. C. Lieutenant Sawtelle attended George Washington University and is a member of the Sons of the American Revolution as well as an active member of Temple Noyes Lodge of which his grandfather, the late Matthew Trimble, was Grandmaster. He is a member of the District of Columbia Bar and practiced in Washington until called to active service with the Army in the office of the Quartermaster General.

Early this month Miss Peggy Hughes, daughter of Lt. Col. James Clark Hughes, FA, USA, of Ft. Bragg and Mrs. Hughes will be married to Lt. (jg) Paul Brennan Ray, USN, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Lee R. Ray of Greenwood, Mass.

Miss Hughes has been making her home with her sister, Mrs. Van Every, wife of Lieutenant Every, USN, at Norfolk. She was graduated from the University of Southern California, and Lieutenant Ray, now attending submarine school at New London, has just been ordered to Pearl Harbor, Hawaii. He was graduated from the Naval Academy in '36.

Announcement is made of the marriage Sunday, 23 March, in Yuma, Ariz., of Hilda Avery Tait, daughter of Mrs. Sally Avery of Coronado, Calif., to Lt. Comdr. Albert Gleaves Barry, USN. Lieutenant Commander Barry was graduated from the Naval Academy with the class of 1914.

Dr. James E. Root, Jr., USN, and Mrs. Harry J. Lang, announce the engagement of their daughter, Dorothy Louise Root, to Lt. Carroll Herbert Wight, AC-Res., son of Mrs. Edith L. Wight of San Diego, Calif. A June wedding is planned.

The bride-elect is a student at San Diego State College where she is affiliated with Tau Zeta Rho Sorority. Lieutenant Wight studied at the same school and is a member of Phi Lambda XI. He is stationed at Selfridge Field, Mich.

Coming as a surprise to their many friends is the announcement that Miss Willene Whitcomb, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Whitcomb of San Diego, Calif., was married Saturday, 29 April, to Lt. Jack Cates Ferguson, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. Reagan Ferguson.

Following a honeymoon spent at Palm Springs, the young couple will make their home in Coronado at 744 D Ave.

Mr. Thomas Holcomb, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Rogers Holcomb, of New Castle, Del., and nephew of Maj. Gen. Thomas Holcomb, Major General Commandant of the Marine Corps, and Miss Margaret Janvier, daughter of the late Francis de H. Janvier, and the late Anne Rodney Janvier, were married Friday, 28 March.

The wedding was celebrated at 7:30 p.m. in old Emmanuel Church in New Castle, Del., which is the home of both the bride and groom.

Among the guests at the ceremony were the Major General Commandant, General Holcomb, Mrs. Holcomb, and their son, Mr. Frank Holcomb.

Warrant Officer Sherman Collings, USA, Boston, Mass., and Mrs. Collings announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Mary Anne Collings, to 2nd Lt. Hobart B. Pillsbury, CAC, son of Mrs. Augusta Pillsbury, Manchester, N. H., and the late Mr. Hobart B. Pillsbury.

Lieutenant Pillsbury is a graduate of the United States Military Academy, class of 1940, and is now stationed at Fort Strong, Mass.

The wedding will take place in the late summer.

Appointments to Academies

A favorable report on the bill, S. 658, authorizing appointments to the Military and Naval Academies of sons of officers, soldiers, sailors, marines, and nurses who were killed in action or have since or may hereafter die of wounds or injuries received or disease contracted in line of duty during the World War, was submitted this week by the Senate Committee on Military Affairs.

The bill amends the Act of 1926 which provided for appointing 40 additional cadets and midshipmen each year who were sons of officers, soldiers, sailors and marines who died prior to 2 July, 1923, by adding Army and Navy nurses (female) and eliminating the date limitation. Another change would provide that the determination of the Veterans' Administration as to the cause of death shall be final and conclusive and binding upon the Secretaries of War and Navy.

Defense Broadcasts

The National Broadcasting Company and the National Association of Manufacturers, last Saturday inaugurated the first in a series of programs entitled "Defense for America," a dramatic radio pictorialization of American Industry at work on the materials of American defense. The purpose of the programs is to provide the American public with first-hand information on what is taking place backstage in the plants and factories where vital defense materials are being made. The programs will be held each Saturday at 7:00 p.m. through to 10 May over the NBC Red network.

Each broadcast will originate in the active plants where machine tools, aircraft, tanks, ships, guns, and other implements of national defense are being manufactured.

A schedule of the broadcasts follows:

- 5 April—High Explosives.
- 12 April—Chemicals or Submarines.
- 19 April—Small Arms.
- 26 April—Motorized Transport.
- 3 May—Steel.
- 10 May—Rubber.

Navy PG School Courses

The Navy Department has announced that, due to the need of officers in productive billets during the present emergency, of general line, naval engineering (operating), and communications (applied) courses have been suspended at the Post Graduate School at the Naval Academy.

A board will be convened this month to consider applications for post graduate instruction for 1942. Requests for instruction in the following courses will be given consideration: naval engineering (design), radio engineering, ordnance engineering (general, fire control, aviation, explosives, and torpedoes), and aeronautical engineering.

The Secretary of the Navy has recommended to Congress that a law be passed which will reduce the course of instruction at the Naval Academy from four to three years, the law to remain in effect until the graduation of the Class of 1946. The four-year course is to be resumed with the class of 1947.

1st Radio Intelligence Company

The 1st Radio Intelligence Company, consisting of about 150 officers and men, will be transferred from Ft. Monmouth, N. J., to Ft. George G. Meade, Md., for a permanent change of station.

OBITUARIES

Mrs. Elizabeth Murray Finley, wife of the late Capt. James Alexander Finley, surgeon, USA, son of the former Surgeon General Clement Alexander Finley, died in Bronxville, N. Y., on 26 March, in her 87th year.

She is survived by her daughter, Mrs. Emily Finley Robinson, wife of the Rev. Dr. Charles W. Robinson, her granddaughter, Elizabeth Murray Robinson, and two nieces, Mrs. Henry Wood Wiley of Haverford Pennsylvania, and Mrs. T. L. Wheeler of Bryn Mawr, Pa. Funeral services and interment were at the Church of the Redeemer, Bryn Mawr, Pa., on 28 March.

Lt. Col. Albert Howell Barkley, USA-Ret., died 28 March at Estoril, Portugal. Colonel Barkley was born in New York, 16 Sept. 1881. He was graduated from the United States Military Academy and commissioned a second lieutenant in the Artillery Corps in June, 1904. Colonel Barkley was assigned to serve in the Quartermaster Corps in July, 1917. He was transferred to this branch of the service in July, 1920. At the time of the World War, Colonel Barkley served as lieutenant colonel in the National Army. He was retired as major in October, 1922, and promoted to lieutenant colonel, retired, in June, 1930.

Colonel Barkley is survived by his widow, Mrs. Elizabeth Barkley, Estoril, Portugal.

A short funeral service for Sally Rogers Hall, daughter of Lt. Col. John R. Hall, MC, and Mrs. Hall, was held at their home in Alexandria, Va., on Tuesday, 1 April. The family immediately departed for the interment in the family lot at Marshall, Mo.

This Army daughter was born at Ft. Logan, Colo., on 11 Feb. 1914. She was teaching at Fairfax Hall, Waynesboro, Va. While at home for Easter vacation, she drove to Charles Town, W. Va., for the wedding of a friend. She was instantly killed in an automobile accident near that place on Sunday 30 March 1941. She is survived by her mother and father and a brother, Capt. John R. Hall, Jr., MC.

Mrs. William F. Hase, widow of Maj. Gen. William F. Hase, Chief of Coast Artillery, passed away at Dixie Hospital, Hampton, Va., at 8:30 P.M. 27 March 1941, after an illness of 9 days. With her at the time of her death was her daughter, Mrs. John Wood.

Mrs. Hase was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Neuman. She was born in Arkansas City, Kan. She is survived by her two daughters, Mrs. Harold A. Brusher, wife of Maj. Harold A. Brusher, CAC, USA, Mrs. John E. Wood, wife of Lt. John E. Wood, Jr., CAC, USA, her brother, Mr. Albert Neuman of Arkansas City, Kan., and by two grandchildren, Anthony and Mary Elizabeth Brusher.

Funeral services were held at the Post Chapel, Ft. Monroe, Chaplain Bagley reading the service. The pallbearers were, Maj. Gen. Archibald H. Sunderland, USA-Ret., Brig. Gen. Robert S. Abernethy, USA-Ret., Brig. Gen. Frank S. Clark, Brig. Gen. Rollin L. Tilton, Col. Russell P. Reeder, USA-Ret., and Col. W. S. Bowen, CAC. The burial was in Arlington Cemetery on Monday, 31 March 1941.

Mrs. Hase was educated at Wellesley College. Born of New England, Presbyterian ancestry, she possessed a rock-ribbed character and with her brilliant mind was an outstanding personage. She valued far more than anything in life the strong family ties and was ever a devoted wife and mother. One endowed with so many sterling characteristics must find eternal peace; and surely it can be said of her, "Well done, thou good and faithful servant." —N. M. R.

Defense Production

The Office of Production Management finds that its problem is not how to get money, but how to spend it fast enough to meet the program of national and British-aid defense. Total appropriations and authorizations for this purpose for the fiscal years 1941 and 1942 now stand at $32,200,000,000. But the O.P.M. finds that, try as it will, it cannot spend more than $6,500,000,000 this year. It hopes to spend more than $16,000,000,000 during the next fiscal year, ending 30 June 1942.

The bottleneck that prevents transmutation of money into war equipment is the inability of great "prime contractors" to get into production quickly. These contractors in many cases are inconsistent upon trying to manufacture all their equipment instead of obtaining part of it by subcontract. Enormous extensions of great plants are under construction, but the time consumed in plant construction is delaying delivery of material that could be produced by smaller plants already in operation.

Divisions of the Office of Production Management are busily engaged in providing strategic material of all kinds, in order to prevent delays in any branch of production. The Division of Contracts is bringing prime contractors and subcontractors together in many lines, thereby speeding up deliveries both of raw materials and finished products.

Expenditures

It is estimated that defense expenditures for March were $750,000,000. By July these expenditures are expected to reach $50,000,000 every working day. But even in that case there will be a lag between appropriations and expenditures. The $7,000,000,000 allowed for aid to foreign governments cannot be easily or readily changed into armaments and ships.

Spokesmen of the Office of Production Management are not dismayed by strikes, but they are dismayed by the attitude of some great contracting concerns, which seem to have miscalculated their ability to expand production as rapidly as the government requires. Delays are in prospect in spite of well-meant efforts of all concerned. Intimations are forthcoming, intended to prepare the public for disappointment as to the grand total of war equipment and ships actually produced and delivered during the next two years.

Despite sensational disturbances at a few plants engaged in national defense production, the output of war materials of all kinds is rapidly increasing, and the number of men at work is larger each week. Total employment of new workers vastly exceeds the number of men drawn into strikes. Outside of the soft-coal deadlock the number of men on strike is less than in February, although the number of strikes, large and small, is somewhat greater.

Mediation Board

The National Defense Mediation Board promptly adjusted three of the first four cases certified to it by the Secretary of Labor. The board is making progress in two remaining cases, and its persuasive methods of adjustment are having a widespread effect throughout industry. Workers in several plants where strikes were threatened have indicated their willingness to adopt the Mediation Board's plan for keeping at work pending discussion and adjustment of grievances. In most cases the workers are satisfied with the assurance that increases of pay, when agreed upon, will date back to the beginning of the dispute.

Pervading opinion in Congress frowns upon legislation that would outlaw strikes or authorize the administration to take over operation of strike-ridden plants engaged in indispensable defense production. Both the President and leaders in Congress have faith in the methods of the National Defense Mediation Board. They will oppose more drastic action while the board is under test. If conditions should compel legislative action, it is expected that the bill introduced by Chairman Vinson of the House Committee on Naval Affairs will form the basis of a new policy. This would enable the President to keep in operation a plant whose product is vitally necessary to defense.

In scores of unpublicized instances the representatives of the Office of Production Management have averted strikes in industrial plants. At the same time, the number of workers in these plants has been greatly increased. In other cases the agents of the Conciliation Service of the Department of Labor have succeeded in settling disputes without stoppage of work. The total number of workers involved in these settled disputes is estimated at ten times the number of men who have been involved in strikes.

Problem of Apprentices

A point over which stubborn differences have arisen in the labor field is the employment of apprentices. The national defense program is retarded by shortage of skilled workers. Proposals to increase the number of apprentices in some branches of industry are stoutly opposed by union executives, who fear that sudden slackening of production hereafter would make it difficult to keep present workers employed, to say nothing of newly graduated apprentices. The Department of Labor, however, is pressing for enlargement of the apprentice quota, and is making some headway in its campaign.

The proportion of men who can be shifted from W.P.A. rolls to fill skilled jobs in defense production is disappointingly small. Employers contend that the great increase of skilled workers required to meet the program must be sought in the ranks of workers who are now engaged in non-defense or so-called "non-essential" industries. The situation has not yet reached the stage, however, where the administration is disposed to strip "non-essential" industries of their workers to speed up defense production.

Separate Sales Commissaries

In a move designed to facilitate and simplify the functioning of the field ration system, which is to be in force at all Army posts of more than 2,000 population by 1 May 1941, all existing commissary installations except at the Army War College, general hospitals, the United States Military Academy, and certain other stations, will be separated on a functional basis into two separate and distinct agencies to be known as Organization Commissaries, and Sales Commissaries.

In the new setup, the Organization Commissaries will deal exclusively with the messing organizations and officers' messes, while the Sales Commissaries will deal with individuals authorized to make purchases. The change must be made not later than 1 May 1941.

Separate accounts will be maintained by each of the divisions, but accounts of Organization Commissaries will be limited to regimental or separate unit supply officers. Distribution of subsistence within regiment or separate units will be entirely by unit supply officer, thus providing valuable training, as well as centralizing and simplifying control and administration. It is estimated that the new system will reduce the number of accounts for an Army Division from 120 or 130 to 10 or 12.

Sales Commissaries will be limited to cash sales only, thus simplifying administration and reducing personnel and office equipment requirements. It will enable a greater number of persons to be served by a limited personnel. The Sales Commissaries will be operated only at posts where the Post Commander deems them necessary to the welfare of his command.

By providing valuable training for unit supply officers in their field functions, the Organization Commissary system should pay great dividends when these officers take the field in maneuvers and other similar training later. More adequate and uniform control of subsistence issues to all organizations and a completely centralized responsibility also will be gained under the system.

The two-part setup, which will go into effect at many stations during April 1941, is in effect a modification of the functional difference between a large wholesale store and a retail store. In the new Commissary reorganization, large quantities of a limited number of items will be handled by the Organization units, while a wider variety of certain sales articles will be handled by the Sales units.

Regular Army Appointments

Regulations by which appointments as second lieutenants, Regular Army, will be made to fill at least 100 anticipated vacancies were announced yesterday by the War Department. The appointments will be made from officers of the Army of the United States on extended active duty or in Federal service who meet age and other requirements.

A total of approximately 760 vacancies will be filled during the fiscal year 1942, of which about 425 will be graduates of the class of 1941 of the Military Academy. One hundred more vacancies will be filled by Thomason Act Reserve officers, while 50 honor graduates of ROTC units and 37 Reserve officers who are graduates of the Air Corps Training Center also will be given Regular Army commissions. The difference is that which will be filled by appointments from Reserve officers on extended active duty and officers of the National Guard of the United States in Federal service who meet certain requirements. The number to be appointed from the latter source will not be known until final attrition figures for the fiscal year 1941 are known, (about 15 July 1941.)

In general, to be eligible for appointment, a candidate at the time of being commissioned must be a citizen of the United States, between the ages of 21 and 30 years, single and not previously married, and physically qualified for appointment in the Regular Army. Applications must be made not later than 1 May 1941, for those vacancies to be filled during the fiscal year of 1942, and not later than 3 Jan. of each year thereafter for appointment in succeeding fiscal years.

Prior to going through the final selection process, the applicant must appear before a preliminary board which will consider his moral character and general fitness, in addition to conducting a preliminary educational examination. This examination is of a qualifying nature only, and will have no bearing on the final selection. There will, however, be no exemptions from the educational examination or from any part thereof.

Standard machine-graded tests designed to test the applicant's general knowledge, intellectual level, and capacity for intellectual development will be used. The tests will be held the third week in July for those appointments to be made during the 1942 fiscal year. They are designed to weed out the college graduate who has passed through college without raising his intellectual level and will also afford opportunity for the self-educated man. The machine-graded tests are being used since a large number of applicants is anticipated.

Papers in the preliminary examination will be returned to the War Department, where they will be graded and a list of all applicants in comparative order will be prepared. A point on this list below which candidates will be ineligible for further consideration for appointment will be determined by a War Department board.

Army commanders then will be furnished lists of those candidates considered qualified. A Board, or Boards, each to consist of three Regular Army line officers, will be named by each Army commander to interview all candidates. These boards will be guided to a great extent by recommendations of company, battalion and regimental commanders as to leadership capabilities demonstrated by the applicant in actual duty. At the time of this final interview, the applicant already has demonstrated his mental, moral, and physical fitness, and he is then being given a chance to demonstrate actual accomplishments. This interview plus a final physical examination constitutes the final examination which will be held beginning the first week in September for those appointments to be made in the fiscal year 1942, and beginning the first week in May of succeeding years.

Army commanders will submit their recommendations to the War Department not more than 20 days after completion of the final examinations, and a secret War Department selection board will choose the successful candidates.

Appointment will be made in the Infantry, Cavalry, Field Artillery, Coast Artillery Corps, Corps of Engineers, Signal Corps, Quartermaster Corps, Chemical Warfare Service, Ordnance Department and Finance Department. At the time of application, each candidate must indicate preference as to the arm or service in which he seeks appointment. However, the applicant cannot be assured that in the event he is selected, he will be appointed in the arm or service in which he is serving at the time of examination.

Preliminary boards will consist of not less than three officers of the arms and services in which commissions are to be granted, in addition to one or two medical officers. Since all applicants have previously been found physically qualified for extended active duty, the preliminary physical will be dispensed with, except in those cases where a change

U. S. COAST GUARD

ACTING under orders from the President, Coast Guard officers and men seized some 70 ships aggregating more than 300,000 tons in American ports Sunday to prevent sabotage. Ships seized were interned craft of Germany, Italy and Denmark which had sought refuge in the United States at the outbreak of the war. Many of the German and Italian vessels had been severely damaged by their crews before being boarded by the Coast Guardsmen. Crew members are to be tried on charges of sabotage and overstaying the immigration limit.

Seizures were made in 18 American ports in each instance being directed by the District Commander or Captain of the Port. Ports and officers involved were:

Portland, Me., Lt. Thomas Sampson, Captain of the Port; Boston, Capt. Thomas A. Shanley, District Commander, and Lt. Comdr. C. W. Thomas, Captain of the Port; New York, Capt. R. W. Dempwolf, District Commander, and Comdr. J. S. Bayliss, Captain of the Port; Philadelphia, Comdr. E. A. Coffin, District Commander, and Comdr. L. E. Wells, Captain of the Port; Baltimore, Comdr. C. H. Abel, Captain of the Port, and Lt. W. C. Capron, Assistant Captain of the Port; Norfolk, Va., Capt. William J. Keester, District Commander, and Comdr. S. S. Yeandle, Captain of the Port; Charleston, S. C., Comdr. W. K. Scammon, District Commander, and Lt. Comdr. L. V. Marron, Captain of the Port; Jacksonville, Fla., Lt. W. L. Maloney, Captain of the Port; Port Everglades, Fla., Lt. P. L. Stinson, Captain of the Port; Mobile, Ala., Chf. Bswn. Marius Peterson, Captain of the Port; New Orleans, La., Capt. James L. Ahearn, District Commander, and Lt. Comdr. Charles Etzwiler, Captain of the Port; Galveston, Tex., Chf. Bswn. Bryan Spencer, Captain of the Port; San Juan, P. R., Comdr. C. H. Dench, District Commander, and Chf. Bswn. L. C. Engell, Captain of the Port; St. Thomas, V. I., Lt. Hans F. Slade, Captain of the Port; Los Angeles, Calif., Capt. L. L. Bennett, District Commander, and Lt. Comdr. F. D. Higbee, Captain of the Port; San Francisco, Calif., Capt. Stanley V. Parker, District Commander, and Lt. Comdr. J. W. Kelliher, Captain of the Port; Seattle, Wash., Capt. W. H. Munter, District Commander, and Comdr. F. C. Hingsbury, Captain of the Port, and Astoria, Ore., Lt. Comdr. M. P. Jensen, Captain of the Port.

in the physical condition appears to warrant such action. The board will inquire carefully into the moral character and general fitness of the applicant, investigating also the applicant's personality, appearance, tact, bearing, past experience, and general adaptability to the military service.

The educational examination will be taken by all applicants, regardless of previous training. The examinations will be more general than specific and more reasoning than memory. For purposes of review, any generally used text should prove helpful to refresh the applicant's facility in applying the concepts and principles of the subject when thinking about basic questioning. "Cramming" on certain items of information will be of no help. Part I of the examination will be required of all applicants. It includes English (usage and expression, reading comprehension) general culture (current social problems, history and social studies, literature, science, fine arts, mathematics) and contemporary affairs (political events, social and economic events, science and medicine, literature, fine arts, and recreation). In Part II, the applicant will choose two subjects from the following, only one of which may be a language: advanced mathematics, physical sciences, social studies, English literature, psychology and education, engineering, French, German, Spanish.

National Defense Investigation

A sweeping investigation of the National Defense program to be conducted by the Committees on Military and Naval Affairs was voted by the House of Representatives this week, with only Representative Vito Marcantonio, N. Y., dissenting. The resolution authorizing and directing the investigation gives the two committees power to subpoena witnesses

The famous schooner yacht Atlantic, 303 gross tons, which is 145 feet long with a breadth of 29 feet and a 250 horsepower engine, has been presented to the Coast Guard by Gerard B. Lambert of the New York Yacht Club and will soon be sent to the Coast Guard Academy at New London, Conn. Members of the Academy's second class will make a practice cruise on the schooner next summer. The Atlantic has made many trips across the Atlantic Ocean and holds the record for a single day's run of any sailing yacht, 341 nautical miles.

New Construction

Contracts have been awarded for the construction at Curtis Bay, Md., Coast Guard Depot, of two shipways to accommodate the building of vessels up to 350 feet in length and of 3,000 tons, at a total cost of $1,146,748. A new drydock also is to be built at the Depot at a cost of $548,740.

Contract also has been let for bulkheading, dredging, filling and the construction of a marine launchway at the Lake St. Clair Station, Cleveland District, in the amount of $63,240, plus a fixed price per cubic yard for adjudged dredging. Negotiations have been instituted for acquiring sites for radio stations for the Cleveland and New York Districts.

Wheeler Shipyard, Inc., Brooklyn, N. Y., was the low bidder for the construction of forty 83-foot patrol boats. The boats will be of wood construction with a power plant of two 600 H. P. Sterling-Viking engines, together with two 120 volt auxiliary generating sets.

Bids will be opened on 7 April for the building of three 327-foot cutters and on 9 April for two 110-foot cutters.

Army Day Parade

Headquarters has made plans for the participation of one rifle company of three platoons and a color guard from the Coast Guard Depot in the Army Day Parade in Washington, D. C. on 5 April.

Editorial Prize Winners

Prize winners in the contest staged by the Alumni Association Bulletin for papers on Coast Guard activities have been announced as follows: Technical articles—Lt. Comdr. C. W. Harwood, first; Capt. (E) C. J. Odendhal, second, and Comdr. L. V. Kielhorn, third. Non-technical articles—the late Comdr. J. C. Cantwell (Ret.), first, and Lt. Comdr. C. W. Thomas and Lt. J. D. Harrington, to divide second and third prizes equally.

and to require the production of books, papers and documents.

Representative Andrew J. May, Ky., chairman of the Military Affairs Committee, immediately announced that his committee would meet next Monday morning to commence its investigation and would call Clarence Dykstra, head of the National Mediation Board, as its first witness. He pointed out that this committee started on such an investigation on its own volition several weeks ago.

The Naval Affairs Committee will not start its investigation until 15 April, according to Chairman Carl W. Vinson, Ga., who said the question of strikes in industries that are delaying Navy construction projects would be the first matter to be considered. The general investigation by his committee would embrace twelve points in the program covering contracts, construction, bids, strikes, distribution of defense contracts, priorities and the general labor situation, he said.

Part

A Royal Typewriter is made of 2257 precision parts.

But one additional ingredient is greater than any of these. Because of it, the Royal is known as the World's Number 1 Typewriter.

That 2258th part is Employee Co-operation. And we have more than our share of this. Possibly because of the security our people enjoy. Or because of our free training schools for ambitious employees. Or because all executives have come up through the ranks.

Whatever the reason, Royal's 2258th part means better typewriter for your money.

The First Army Headquarters is responsible for the organization and training of the Tactical Field Force. The principal and over-all objective in regard to the Tactical Organization of this First Army is to create with a minimum delay, a combined mobile ground and air force, adequately equipped and trained, and intelligently led, prepared to move immediately wherever an emergency may demand.

In the field of training, the principal objective is to train the individual soldier in the use of the weapons with which he is armed, and to train the individual officer in the employment and limitations of the weapons of his organization. Beyond this individual training lies the next step which includes training in teamwork between individuals, beginning in squads and going right on up to include the higher combat units. Hand in hand with this type of training is the system for training commanders and staffs. Now that the higher headquarters of the larger tactical organizations exist, it is essential to train the necessary command and staff organizations to carry out the tactical requirements.

Modern combat is not conducted by going to war with a group of individuals. It does demand that each individual knows his job, but it demands further that all individuals work together as a team. Training programs are all directed toward these objectives of securing the highest degree of individual skill, and coordination in the team-work, and the Command and staff work of the combat units.

In supply, adequate material exists today to satisfy the needs of the training program. As the training progresses and the needs increase, it is expected that the industrial mobilization now underway will prove adequate to meet these supply problems.

More important than all problems of organization, supply or training, is the essential factor of the human being. Modern science has made the business of war a business which includes a large amount of machinery and mechanical equipment. Development of mechanical forces, the increased speed and range of vehicles, the increased fire-power of automatic arms, the development in chemicals, radio, and in other fields, have brought new devices and new skills in the field of modern combat. And yet, no one of these developments nor its full value is realized unless we accept the fact that man remains the master on the battlefield. Man must dominate the machinery of war. Any training program which ignores the human factor is doomed to failure. We must accept that it is the human being who faces the need for personal sacrifice in battle, and that in the long run, we go to war with men. The fact that we are equipped with the machines of war and that we are trained in the use of these machines are essential parts of our organization for modern combat. No training program should ignore these essential needs, and no training program should give them too great an importance.

In the First Army, every effort is made to allow to each individual soldier, or officer, the widest possible opportunity for advancement based upon his qualifications. Equality of opportunity is principle which underlies all parts of the training programs. Healthy, normal competitions are encouraged to take advantage of the traditional American competitive spirit. Discipline is assured by the creation of respect for intelligent leadership, and within the individual the cultivation of self-respect and pride in accomplishment. These are the principles which support the organization and the training of the First Army, an integral part of the Field Force of our United States Army.

From Maine to North Carolina, the First Army is responsible for the defense of the northeastern theatre of our Atlantic seaboard. Working hand in hand with the territorial set-up of the Corps Area, it is prepared to carry out carefully drawn training programs which emphasize the human factor in our military system.

The Second Army

Lt. Gen. Ben Lear, Commanding General

DURING the World War, the Second Army and its staff were organized on 9 September, 1918, at Toul, France. On 12 October, 1918, Maj. Gen. Robert L. Bullard assumed command of the Second Army. During the period 12 October-9 November, the Second Army occupied defensive sectors of Lorraine. It consisted at that time of the 4th Army Corps and the French Second Colonial Corps, with the staff of the 6th Corps attached and the 28th Division in reserve. On 10-11 November, it participated in the attack northeast of Pont-a-Mousson. At this time it consisted of the 4th, 6th and French 17th Corps. After the armistice the Second Army occupied an area in Luxembourg and Belgium from 19 December, 1918, to 31 March, 1919. On 15 April, 1919, the Second Army was dissolved.

The present Second Army had its inception on paper 18 Aug. 1933, when the Army of the United States was divided into the following major organizations: (a) four armies (1st, 2nd, 3rd and 4th); (b) General Headquarters; (c) Zone of the Interior Troops; (d) Overseas Garrison. Headquarters of the Second Army was then announced as Chicago, in Illinois, and, incidentally, located on a road that bore the name of the General who first commanded the Second Army in the World War, "Pershing." At this early stage, headquarters of the 6th Corps area was also headquarters for the new Second Army, and the command of both units was delegated to the same individuals. The troops then under the command of the Second Army proper consisted only of such units as assigned from the 5th and 6th Corps Area, practically all of whom were either inactive or partially inactive.

On 9 June, 1936, the nuclei of army staffs (4) each to consist of two field officers and one enlisted man, was authorized. Not until August, 1940, was the staff personnel increased. Then four officers and four enlisted men were added. The first large scale maneuvers for the Second Army was announced in 1938. Plans for these maneuvers were initiated by Lt. Gen. Stanley H. Ford; Col. John B. Shuman, Adjutant General; Col. Marion O. French, G-2 and G-4; and Col. Fred L. Walker, G-1 and G-3. During 1940, in the further preparation for the maneuvers held in August, the staff was gradually increased, and on 8 July, 1940, consisted of some 41 officers. The Second Army headquarters opened in the maneuver area on 1 August, 1940. During the period from 3 August to 31 August, 1940, some 60,000 troops were assembled and took part in successful maneuvers as units of the Second Army. At the end of these maneuvers, the army staff was again reduced to but four officers. On 3 Oct., 1940, the War Department directed that corps area headquarters and army headquarters be physically separated, and at midnight, 19-20 October, 1940, this separation of the two headquarters was made effective. The Second Army moved its headquarters to 44 South Second Street, Memphis, Tenn., 5 Dec., 1940, where it is now located.

Lt. Gen. Ben Lear became Commanding General of The Second Army 1 Oct., 1940. The personnel of the Second Army headquarters began to increase after separation from 6th Corps Area headquarters. Headquarters Company was activated 18 Nov., 1940, with three officers and 137 enlisted men authorized. 47 officers were authorized for headquarters. During this period many units were assigned to the Second Army, and as of 1 March, 1941, the Second Army included, in addition to the Headquarters and Headquarters Company, the following major organizations: 5th Division, located at Ft. Custer, Mich.; 6th Division, when fully assembled to be located at Ft. Leonard Wood, Mo.; 2nd Cavalry Division, located at Ft. Riley, Kans.; VII Army Corps Headquarters, located at Birmingham, Ala.; 27th Division, located at Ft. McClellan, Ala.; 33rd Division, located at Camp Forrest, Tenn.; 35th Division, located at Camp Joseph T. Robinson, Ark.; 40th Coast Artillery Brigade, located at Ft. Sheridan, Ill. In addition to these units there are a number of smaller army organizations, stationed at Ft. Benjamin Harrison, Ind.; Ft. Crook, Nebr.; Ft. Des Moines, Iowa;

Erie Proving Grounds, Ohio.; Ft. Knox, Ky.; Ft. Meade, S. D.; Ft. Reno, Okla.; Rock Island Arsenal, Ill.; Savanna Ordnance Depot, Ill.; Ft. Sill, Okla.; Ft. Snelling, Minn.; Ft. Francis E. Warren, Wyo.; Ft. Wayne, Mich.; and Camp McCoy, Wis. The total authorized strength of troops assigned to and attached to Second Army is 124,745 officers and enlisted men. On 1 March, 1941, the actual strength of these troops was 87,456 officers and enlisted men. This number is gradually increasing and the full strength is expected to be reached by 1 July, 1941.

Approximately 6,600 officers and 121,000 enlisted men of the Second Army will participate in three strenuous periods of maneuvers during the present year, it was announced today by Second Army Headquarters in Memphis. Army posts located in 18 different states will be represented in these maneuvers. The period 2-28 June will see about 77,000 of these troops engaging in corps training maneuvers at Camp Forrest, near Tullahoma, Tenn. The 2nd Armored Division, which is not a part of the Second Army and which comprises about 13,000 officers and enlisted men, will also participate in the maneuvers at Camp Forrest. The second period, 11-30 Aug., will see also corps training at Camp Robinson, near Little Rock, Ark. The third period, 1-30 Sept., will be used for intensive drills during movements of units from home stations to Camp Beauregard, La., and during the latter part of the period, for army maneuvers by the Second Army opposed by units of the Third Army in the Sabine River—Camp Beauregard area.

Details of the schedule for the latter two periods of the maneuvers have not yet been released, but a study of the Camp Forrest, Tenn., schedule shows that a program of very extensive scope is to be covered, which will include both day and night activities. Practically every minute of available time during the entire period is to be devoted to giving the soldiers a taste of what real warfare may be like. For many of these soldiers, this will be their first maneuvers on a scale comparable to this, many of them being selectees who have been inducted into the service during the past few months.

The War Situation

Churchill's fateful decision to extend the Mediterranean theatre of operations to include a land front in Greece has been followed by a smashing defeat of Mussolini's Fleet.

The British destruction of three Italian cruisers, and two destroyers with an estimated loss of about 1500 Italian officers and men on the flanks of the British lines of communications, supporting their land forces in Greece and Africa, and with a loss to themselves of only two planes and their crews, is ample proof that the British strategical dispositions in the Mediterranean are able to support their sea lines of communications. The details of the action between the British and Italian Fleets in the Ionian Sea on 28 March are obscure. Reports released to date indicate that the British Fleet consisted of three battleships, one aircraft carrier, four cruisers and some destroyers (including some from the Greek Navy). The Italian Fleet had an equal number of battleships (but no aircraft carrier), eleven cruisers and fourteen destroyers. It is difficult to evaluate the relative strength of two such Fleets. However, the Italians were not concentrated and were lacking in an air component. Therefore, they were outclassed without giving any undue weight to fighting experience and spirit of the British forces.

About noon on 27 March, the British air reconnaissance reported that Italian cruisers were southeast of Sicily. It is probable that this reconnaissance was made by aircraft based on shore. Admiral Cunningham upon receipt of this information sent Vice Admiral Pridham-Whipple, commanding a squadron of cruisers and some destroyers to a position south of Crete and also ordered the battleships Warspite, Barham and Valiant and the aircraft carrier Formidable to leave their base at Alexandria immediately.

Early on 28 March, British aircraft reported that an Italian force was seventy miles south of Crete. At this time the British light forces were forty miles and the main fleet ninety-five miles to the southeast. At 8:02 a.m. the British and Italian cruisers made contact and at 9:00 a.m. the latter turned about and headed to the northwestward. At 10:58 a battleship of the Littorio class was reported sixteen miles to the northward. Torpedo and bombing attacks were launched by the British Fleet and about 11:30 their aircraft reported another Italian force about eighty miles southwest of Crete. This force was reported to consist of two battleships of the Conte De Cavour class, three cruisers and four destroyers.

The separation of the Italian Fleet into two units, not in supporting distance of each other, indicates that the Italian Commander-in-chief had no knowledge of the on-coming British main fleet, and also, that if he had any aircraft scouting units they were unable to locate it. Without knowledge of the presence of the British Fleet, the Italian Fleet was most certainly handicapped by its dispositions. It is believed that the Italian forces were covering a wide front in search of British convoys en route to Greece and considered that they were in supporting distance of each other.

When this second Italian force was sighted about 11:30 a.m., Admiral Cunningham called on the Royal Air Force bombers of the Middle East Command to join in the air attack. What forces participated have not been announced. However, the reports say that the British air attacks were continued until dark and a number of torpedo hits claimed. If Italian battleships were damaged by aircraft attacks and their speed reduced as claimed, it seems that such ships would have been brought under fire of British battleships on the morning of 29 March. However, reports from London say that what happened after the sinking of the three Italian cruisers, Zara, Pola and Flume about 10:10 p.m. is obscure.

These cruisers were a part of light forces which came under the fire of the heavy batteries of the British battleships at a range of about 4000 yards during darkness. The British were undoubtedly at "action stations" and were able to illuminate and open fire before the faster ships, the cruisers, could open the range. Only a salvo or two were necessary to accomplish the destruction of such lightly armored vessels as cruisers at a range of 4000 yards. The two Italian destroyers were destroyed at the same time, and possibly, one cruiser of the Colleone class.

The Italian destroyers accompanying the cruisers launched a torpedo attack against the British heavy units and caused them to turn away to avoid the torpedoes.

The British Commander-in-chief reported that Nazi aircraft fired on British boats which were engaged in picking up Italian officers and men who were clinging to life rafts and that he withdrew his boats after notifying the Italian Naval Chief of Staff of the circumstances.

The presence of Nazi aircraft on the morning after the battle probably was one of the reasons which prompted the British to give up the chase of the retreating Italians who during the night had reached positions which could be supported by shore based aircraft, such as those which made the surprise attacks on 10 January on the aircraft carrier Illustrious and the cruiser Southampton.

This British victory at sea weakened materially the Italian Fleet but left a large portion of it still intact. However, the British Fleet has again proven the utility of aircraft carriers and torpedo planes in fleet action. Furthermore, it has renewed their faith in their ability to establish and maintain a land front in the Balkans theatre which gives the greatest promise of breaking Hitler's will to war.

Exchange Equipment

The Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries of the House of Representatives this week reported H. R. 4105 to authorize the Secretary of the Navy and the Secretary of the Treasury to exchange old Navy and Coast Guard motor-propelled vehicles, airplanes, engines, parts, machines and tools in part payment for new equipment of the same or similar character.

FINANCE

Financial Digest

Industry and Labor are being subjected to direct and indirect pressure to settle their disputes in order that the National Defense program may be expeditiously carried to completion. In the Senate, there has developed support for an Administration proposal under which the Government could take over and operate strike-ridden factories. The House has authorized investigations by the Military and Naval Committees of the labor situation as it relates to Army and Navy contracts. The President has said that he does not favor additional labor legislation until the Super Labor Board which he created, shall have had a fair opportunity to demonstrate its value in producing peace in Industry. To prevent such legislation, Administration Leaders forced a recess of the House for ten days, a "cooling off" period, which, it is believed, will insure a more temperate view on the part of members. For the effect it would have upon the soft-coal controversy, the Government placed a ceiling upon bituminous prices. A like ceiling has been placed upon iron and steel scrap prices. There are reports that there is impending a general application of the ceiling principle, which would mean that practically everything produced and consumed would be permitted to fluctuate in price within maxima fixed by the Government. By thus curtailing profits and preventing rise in living costs, it is argued that Labor will have less ground for demanding wage increases.

Involved in the matter of price fixing is that of priorities. Machine tools and aluminum have been placed on a mandatory priority status, and magnesium producers have been requested to give defense orders complete preferential status. With regard to nickel, zinc, tungsten, and temporarily tight situations, such as that of structural steel, the priorities division has continued its efforts to straighten out all difficulties by informal and voluntary cooperation of producers and consumers. Meanwhile, arrangements for further expansion of metal producing capacity are underway; training programs preparing skilled workers for defense industries have been enlarged and speeded up; commitments for the importation of strategic and critical materials have been increased, and producers of certain civilian goods are being urged to develop the use of substitutes.

Under the priority arrangements adopted, responsibility for determining the relative importance of finished military material, whether guns, tanks, airplanes, ammunitions, etc., rests with the Army and Navy Munitions Board. This Board issues preference ratings to contractors, and, if necessary, approves extension of a rating to a sub-contractor, indicating in each case the order of preference. For all items below the first subcontract, including all raw materials, preference ratings are determined by the Priorities Division of the OPM.

It is encouraging to note that Industry is gearing toward that increase of 60 per cent in terms of man-hours in production, which Chairman Kaudens of the OPM declared to be necessary to keep our defense program on schedule. Interfering with the progress is, of course, the strikes. The President has said that the gains of labor during recent years must not be lost. However, in Congress the sentiment is growing to adopt measures for the restriction of those gains. The AFL is aware of this fact, as shown by the willingness which some of its units have expressed to avoid jurisdictional disputes, but the CIO has yet to be as responsive to public feeling. The rioting and violence of the week, and the call of the Governor of Wisconsin upon the President for Federal Troops to establish and maintain order at the Allis-Chalmers plant at Milwaukee, have intensified the demand that the President take drastic action. There is no likelihood that he will dispatch troops to the scene of strikes, but if they continue he may be forced by the need of speed in armament production to steps which he is anxious to avoid. Among them is the strengthening of the Selective Service Act whereby he will be able to take over strike afflicted plants and operate them. There is reason to believe that a group of New Dealers and some Labor leaders would favor such action, since it would lead to government ownership, and certainly to the establishment of yardsticks which would affect the entire economy of the Nation.

Aid to Democracies

President Roosevelt revealed at his press conference in Washington Friday that the current status of the war aid program is as follows:

A total of $1,580,000,000 out of the $7,000,000 made available under the lend-lease appropriation bill has been allocated for production of war materials for democracies and $500,000,000 in old material has been released from Army and Navy stocks for transfer abroad. In addition study is being given a plan for $1,500,000,000 for purchase of more weapons for transfer abroad but this allocation has not yet been made.

The President stated that transfers of old material limited by Congress to an overall total of $1,300,000,000 are not going to be itemized but will generally be similar to the transaction in which a large quantity of 75 mm. guns were ordered sent to Greece earlier this week.

Also revealed was the fact that the President has ordered construction of 212 new merchant vessels for Britain and other democracies, which will be built in 56 new shipyards. They will be included in the $1,580,000,000 allocation for new materials along with funds for repair of damaged merchant vessels. Damaged vessels to be repaired, he said, may belong to several nations but do not include any of the Axis or Danish ships seized last week-end. No repairs to damaged war vessels are provided for and no British war vessels have as yet arrived in American ports for repairs, he said.

Gen. Jones to 16th Bomb.

Brig. Gen. Junius W. Jones has been ordered from the Inspector General's Department to command the 16th Bombardment Wing at Bowman Field, Louisville, Ky.

MERCHANT MARINE

Merchant Marine

Far overshadowing all other developments this week was the sudden seizure by the government of two German, 28 Italian and 35 Danish ships, laid up in American harbors—an act which inspired similar seizures in ports of other American nations.

Action of the government was protested by Germany and Italy, and later led to announcement by Secretary of State Hull that the Italian naval attache was persona non grata. Official reason given for seizure of the German and Italian hulls was that their crews had sabotaged the ships and so made them liable to seizure. Evidence of sabotage was found, but this does not explain seizure of the Danish vessels where no sabotage was found. It was explained that vessels of all three nations were in protective custody.

All maritime circles predict that means soon will be found either to place the vessels in the American merchant marine, leaving an equivalent number of our ships for transfer to Britain, or to turn the ships directly over to Britain.

The ships seized were:

Would Speed Reserve Promotion

A plea for accelerated promotion of Reserve Officers on active duty in the Army was voiced by Representative Paul J. Kilday, Texas. In a speech on the floor of the House Wednesday, Mr. Kilday urged favorable action on his bill, H. R. 3962, now before the House Committee on Military Affairs, which would authorize Reserve promotions as follows:

Any reserve officer holding a commission for three years and having a certificate of capacity for first Lieutenant would be promoted to first Lieutenant; after holding a commission for seven years and having a certificate of capacity for the grade above the one he holds, or holding a commission as first Lieutenant for four years and a certificate of capacity for the grade of captain, a Reserve Officer would be promoted to captain; after holding a commission for 12 years and having a certificate of capacity for the grade above the one he holds, or holding a commission as captain for five years and a certificate of capacity for major he would be promoted to major; after holding a commission for 18 years and a certificate of capacity for the grade above the one he holds, or holding a commission as major for six years and a certificate of capacity for the grade of Lieutenant colonel he would be promoted to Lieutenant colonel; after holding a commission for 25 years and a certificate of capacity for the grade above the one he holds, or holding a commission as Lieutenant colonel for seven years and a certificate of capacity for colonel, he would be promoted to colonel. Performance by any member of active duty for six months or more would entitle him to a certificate of capacity for the next higher grade.

During his remarks, Representative Kilday said: "I want to emphasize the fact that nothing contained in this bill will prejudice any officer of the Regular Army. Every officer of the Regular Army now has the absolute right to, and will receive, promotion upon the completion of his years of service in each grade. The placing of Reserve officers under a comparable system cannot in any degree impede or delay the promotion of Regular officers in their permanent grades."

He cited figures to show that although there are eight times as many Reserve Officers as officers of the Regular Army, there are far fewer Reserve officers in the higher ranks and a larger number only in the lower ranks. He also referred to a table of organization as of 30 June 1938 which he said showed that there now should be 211 vacancies in the grade of colonel, 631 vacancies in the grade of Lieutenant colonel, 347 vacancies in the grade of major, and 944 vacancies in the grade of captain. In the following table he compared the present strength of Reserve and Regular Army officers:

	Officers' Reserve Corps as of Jan. 31, 1941	Regular Army as of Oct. 20, 1940
Colonels	472	705
Lieutenant colonels ..	3,332	2,883
Majors	3,603	2,460
Captains	13,049	1,877
First Lieutenants ..	42,452	2,017
Second Lieutenants ..	40,975	2,219
Total	101,883	12,170

Armored Force

Organization of a headquarters and headquarters company for the Army Force was authorized this week by the War Department. This separation of the force headquarters from that of the Armored Corps also resulted in the appointment of Maj. Gen. C. L. Scott to command the Armored Force.

The existing tank battalions and the additional ones to be created this summer will also be under command of the Armored Force Commander. Instructions have been issued, however, that the Chief of the Armored Force and the Chief of Infantry shall consult together on the employment of the tank battalions, inasmuch as the battalions are intended for the support of Infantry Divisions.

Rep. Wadsworth Praises Army

The morale of the Army is at a peak never equaled by any Army in the world, Representative James W. Wadsworth, Rep., N. Y., told an applauding House of Representatives on Wednesday of this week in recounting his experiences on a visit to the Second Armored Division at Fort Benning, Ga. He also praised the equipment, housing and food of the Army and read a typical 7-day menu into the Congressional Record, in connection with which he said in part:

"I entered many a mess room. I went through the kitchens and I saw these menus being prepared. I sampled them with the result I had no appetite left. I ate so much by the sampling method, I had little or no appetite left for my own lunch."

"I do this upon the present occasion in order that I may bring you some assurance, indeed definite and conclusive assurance, that never has an army been fed as well as our Army is being fed today."

"There has been nothing lacking. Indeed, I think there has been nothing like it in military history. I can say the same thing for the housing or shelter for the men and for the clothing. Indeed, the same for the training that they are undergoing. It was my good fortune to see this Second Armored Division in training. Much has been said about lack of equipment. An armored division is composed of 3 tank regiments, 1 regiment of medium tanks, 108 tanks to each regiment, which makes 324 tanks in all—an enormous command."

"In the Second Armored Division at Fort Benning there are now 270 tanks actually in use of the modern kind, fast and armored, and 60 tanks are actually on the way to delivery to that division. With the receipt of the 60 we will have a complete armored division at Benning. It contains 11,000 men."

"Mr. Speaker, the men in our Army are training and working all day, and in their odd moments are laughing—the finest morale I have ever seen."

"I am speaking of a typical division. As for morale and sanitation, no army has ever made such a record. Believe it or not, when I visited the Twenty-seventh New York National Guard Division at McClellan last week there were 17,900 men in the division and only two men in the guardhouse. I almost suspect them of running a Sunday School. Do the veterans in this House remember any such record as that?"

"The social diseases, which are greatly feared by all armies, have been brought under such control that in the matter of such diseases the rate in that division was twenty-four one-hundredths of 1 per cent. It is amazing."

"We need not be afraid of how our men are being treated and cared for. We ought to be proud of them."

Representative John W. McCormack, Mass., Democratic floor leader in the House, commended the progress being made in the National Defense program, and said:

"Every soldier who was scheduled by the War Department to be under arms today is housed more adequately than have been the soldiers of any army in history and, moreover, there are surplus accommodations now available for 285,000 more who will soon join the colors."

"The record of accomplishment during the six months that the present construction program has been in force is astounding in comparison with that of the 18 months of the World War period which has always been pointed to as bordering on the miraculous."

Army Chaplains Meet

The relationship of the Army Chaplains' program to that of the Morale Branch was emphasized by Chaplain William R. Arnold, Chief of Chaplains, at a two-day conference of Army, Army Corps, Corps Area, GHQ Air Corps, Air District and Armored Force Chaplains in Washington this week. He also discussed the difference between the present set-up of the chaplains as compared to the time when he entered the service 28 years ago. "When I came into the Army," he said, "the chaplains' organization was a scatter outfit, and now it is a high-powered vehicle."

Others who spoke at the conference included Lt. Col. A. S. Goodyear, AGD, who discussed organization and administration of the Office of Chief of Chaplains; Chaplain Zimmerman on Corps Area chaplains' duties; Chaplain Witherspoon on qualifications for appointment; Chaplain Fromshager on their procurement; Chaplain Monahan on transfer and assignment; Chaplain Virden on the National Guard; Chaplain Rixey on development of projects; Chaplain Ensrud on public relations; Chaplain Gamble on pictorial publicity; Chaplain Lev on the religious fund, and Chaplain Miller on issue of supplies and equipment.

Temporary Navy Promotions

Navy Department sponsored legislation granting authority for temporary promotions probably will be sent to Congress within the next week or two, it was learned this week.

It is understood that the proposed bill will authorize advancements in enlisted ratings, warrant officers, commissioned warrant officers, and commissioned officers, or from one category to another.

Funeral Services for Gen. Winn

Funeral services will be held on Wednesday, 9 April, at 11 a.m. in the Fort Myer, Va., Chapel for Maj. Gen. Frank L. Winn, USA-Ret., who died on 24 February at Palo Alto Hospital, Palo Alto, Calif.

Second Cavalry Div.

Headquarters of the Second Cavalry Division is scheduled to be activated at Fort Riley, Kans., on 1 May. In addition to activation of Headquarters, which involves naming of a commanding general, the Headquarters troops will be activated. The division anti-tank troop will be activated 15 May.

New Defense Funds Voted

Procurement of war materials and equipment and construction of defense bases on British possessions in the Western Hemisphere will be expedited with funds made available by the fifth supplemental national defense appropriation bill for 1941 which was passed by the Senate this week. The bill provides $4,393,221,174 in direct appropriations and contractual authority, most of which goes to the War Department, and represents to a considerable extent advances from estimates in the 1942 national defense appropriation bills.

The Senate Appropriations Committee increased the appropriations in the House bill by $315,474,100, of which $212,679,000 goes to the Quartermaster Corps for regular supplies, clothing and equipage, Army transportation, military posts and barracks and quarters. Other increases include $94,000,000 for the Air Corps; $3,093,000 for the Signal Corps; $2,876,000 for the Medical Department; $130,000 for the Corps of Engineers; $93,100 for the Ordnance Department; $4,100,000 for the Federal Works Agency, and $2,303,000 for civil functions of the War Department. Aside from a cut of $3,800,000 in the House appropriation of $5,300,000 for relocating part of the Alaska Railroad, the House bill, as described in the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL on 22 March, is otherwise largely unchanged.

The Senate after considerable bickering approved a compromise provision with respect to South American meat products which will permit the purchase of such items when domestic products can not readily be procured.

General George C. Marshall, Chief of Staff, told the Appropriations Committee during hearings on the bill that the funds represent immediate requirements of the War Department to carry forward the expanded military program. By advancing the availability of the money instead of waiting for the 1942 appropriations, he said, the Army would be assured of the rapid, steady and uninterrupted production of needed equipment. Among the items to be advanced is the procurement of 79,000 motor vehicles required for the 1,418,000-man Army.

Major items in the bill that represent new programs not included in the 1942 appropriations bills are procurement of 3,600 bombers (1,200 heavy and 2,400 medium), military bases on British possessions, carriages for 16-inch seacoast defense guns and manufacture of defense guns for outlying bases.

General Marshall also said that the bill will permit expanded facilities for the welfare of enlisted men including equipment for 29 recruit reception centers and 42 service clubs at replacement centers, Air Corps stations, and camps with population in excess of 5,000 for which no provision has heretofore been made. Provision also is made for the hostesses and furnishings for the service clubs; the librarians, books and periodicals for the libraries, and a minimum of athletic equipment and facilities at recruit reception centers.

The funds also provide the airplanes and equipment for an observation squadron recently allocated to Alaska, evacuation of dependents of military personnel from the Philippines, expansion of the Air Corps pilot training program with 36 new flying schools, and procurement of additional passenger and freight vessels and harbor boats necessitated by augmentation of overseas and Alaska forces and for shipping personnel and supplies to the new Atlantic and Caribbean bases.

The Navy receives direct appropriations totaling $295,416,820 in the bill for ordnance and ordnance stores, acquisition of 12 additional auxiliary vessels, additional reserve stocks of materials, a new Naval ammunition depot in the San Diego, Calif., area, and a new Marine Corps training area on the east coast.

Horse Show Success

More than 1,200 people, including the Secretary of War and Mrs. Stimson, General George C. Marshall, Chief of Staff and Mrs. Marshall, and other notables of the armed force and society, attended the two-day Armed Services Horse Show held in the riding hall at Ft. Myer last week-end. The show was sponsored by the Woman's Army and Navy League, for benefit of the Soldiers, Sailors and Marines Club.

Feature of the event was the winning of the invitation high jump championship by Howard Butz's Hobo, who despite his 24 years took a six foot jump to defeat Margaret Cotter's Rocksie, and win the $200 championship money. In the first leg of the contest, Rocksie, on Saturday night, negotiated the six-foot bar to set a record at the Ft. Myer riding hall. On Sunday, however, Rocksie failed at a 4½-foot fence, and Hobo came through with the 6-foot hurdle to win.

The invitation high jump championship was said to be the most popular event ever held at Ft. Myer, and drew almost frenzied applause from the near capacity house.

Judges for the events were Maj. Gen. Guy V. Henry, Mr. Crompton Smith and

Col. E. N. Hardy.

The committee in charge of the show was composed of: Mrs. Julian Schley, Mrs. George C. Marshall, Col. William W. Gordon, Larry Lawrence, Lt. Lanier D. Buford, Mrs. Rex Rhodes, Lt. Col. J. W. Minor, V. C., Capt. Charles B. McClelland and Maj. George Elms.

Chief of Chaplains Easter Letter

April 2, 1941.

My Dear Chaplain:

As Easter, or the Feast of the Resurrection, approaches, I am sure that you are again reading the 24th chapter of St. Luke's Gospel and similar chapters of the other Evangelists. The events therein related have been debated, denied, or ignored—but, no man has ever succeeded in obliterating them from the world of historical facts.

Christ, Son of God and Son of Man, had been tortured, crucified, and buried in a sealed and guarded tomb. For the space of three days evil seemed triumphant. Then He came forth alive, appeared to His disciples, ate with them, commanded them to touch Him, and taught them.

"It behooved Christ to suffer and to rise again from the dead—Why are you troubled and why do thoughts arise in your hearts—You are witnesses of these things—Peace be to you—" words from the lips of the living God.

The world has never been the same since. Men and nations and governments have been made aware of a force that cannot be conquered and will not be denied its purpose. Acquiescence or resistance alike prove the declaration, "All power is given to Me in heaven and on earth."

Not only at Easter time, but daily, it is your responsibility and task to open the Scriptures to the minds of men for their understanding until their hearts burn within them. These are dark and fearsome days, and men are yearning to hear the voice of God and to feel the strength and comfort of His power.

You speak to soldiers under arms facing the might of worldly power and spiritual evil. The way of the Cross and some form of Crucifixion are ahead for all of us. By word and example you must show forth the living Christ who says, "I am the Resurrection and the Life; he that believeth in Me, although he be dead, shall live; and everyone that liveth and believeth in Me shall not die forever."

This faith makes men loyal, courageous, enduring and cheerful in spite of hardships, suffering and human failures. Worthy soldiers of Christ are valiant defenders of home and country.

Peace be to you and yours.

Sincerely,
WM. R. ARNOLD,
Chief of Chaplains,
